MURDER LEADS TO ARREST HERE

Victoria Police Chief and Vancouver Detective Seize Man in Government Street Rooms Yesterday

STRANGE CONNECTION WITH FORMER CRIME

Sleuths Link Up Slaying of David Lew With Murder of Chinaman in Cumberland, Is Report

IF information in the possession of the city police authorities of Victoria and Vancouver proves to be correct, the slaying of David Lew on Pender Street, Vancouver, on the night of September 24, will be avenged.

Early yesterday morning Chief John Fry, of Victoria, and Detective Ricket, of the Vancouver dope squad, raided some quarters at the rear of a fruit store conducted by Sam Hop on Government Street, and arrested in one of the rooms they found the man for whom they were searching, Jong Sang. He was taken to the Pender Street Station and, escorted by Detective Ricket, he left on yesterday afternoon's boat for the mainland. He is charged with the murder of David Lew.

The arrest was the culmination of weeks of quiet investigation on the part of police detectives, and the trail has led them into many Chinese quarters located both on Vancouver Island and on the mainland. Detective Ricket requested help from Chief Fry on Sunday night and outlined his plan, calling for the arrest yesterday morning. The chief himself went with the detective to the Government Street store and their entrance into the bedroom of Jong Sang was so quickly executed that he was taken before he could get out of bed.

The arrested man has the same name, it is said, as the Chinaman who was murdered in the coal mining town of Cumberland two years ago. Whether the fact is a mere coincidence or whether it forms a connecting link between the murder at Cumberland and the slaying of David Lew is not known, yet from the story told by a man who has kept closely in touch with Chinese affairs in British Columbia, a connection seems plausible.

RT. HON. A. MEIGHEN WILL SPEAK HERE

CONSERVATIVE LEADER IN EXPECTED NEXT FRIDAY

Mass Meeting Has Been Arranged for Friday Evening in the Panjagies Theatre

RT. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, will be in Victoria next Friday and will address a mass meeting in the Panjagies Theatre, starting at 8 o'clock. Mr. Harry R. Savage, president of the Victoria Conservative Association, received a telegram yesterday from Hon. R. F. Tolmie, who is at present in the Yale constituency in connection with the Federal by-election, stating that the Conservative leader would leave for the coast either immediately. There is a possibility, too, that Hon. Dr. R. Manion, member for the Federal riding of Fort William, Ontario, who is supporting the Conservative candidate, Mr. Grote Stirling, at Yale, will accompany Hon. Mr. Meighen.

Arrangements have been made by the executive committee of the Conservative Association to have the Panjagies orchestra in attendance at the theatre, and the Fletcher music firm has agreed to arrange for broadcast of the speeches. It is expected that Conservative members of the Provincial Legislature, which is now in session, and other prominent members of the party will also occupy seats on the platform with the Tory chief.

URGE AUSTRALIA TO CANCEL PACT

Strong Opposition to Recent Trade Agreement With Canada Develops and Treaty Endangered

MELBOURNE, Nov. 3.—The trade agreement which was completed recently by the government of Australia and Canada providing for a mutual preference between the two overseas Dominions, is in danger of disruption because of strong opposition which has developed in the Commonwealth against the pact. Already efforts are being made to have Australia secure release from her engagements.

The Melbourne Age today voices its strong opposition to the agreement. It declares that Canadian industries which are owned by Americans are getting the preference in certain classes of commodities at the expense of Great Britain. The journal accordingly is urging the government to take the first opportunity of obtaining release from the agreement with Canada.

Gasoline Prices Reduced

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3.—Gasoline prices in Vancouver will be down to 24½ cents a gallon to the public on Tuesday, a reduction of 1½ cents. One gallon of gasoline will cost the purchaser 25 cents, but two will be only 47 cents. In this price is included the three-cent Provincial Government tax.

SESSION OPENS WITH CEREMONY

Traditional Customs Observed in All Their Details and Sixteenth Parliament Gets Under Way

CROWDED GALLERIES ADD TO BRILLIANCY

Message of Condolence to Widow of Late Grand Forks-Greenwood Member Passed by House

THE Speech from the Throne has been read, the new Speaker of the House has been chosen and installed in office, the first bill has been introduced and read a first time, and the first session of British Columbia's sixteenth Parliament is under way.

Yesterday's ceremonious opening of the Legislature was in full keeping with all the traditions of such affairs, and was attended by a crowded floor and crowded galleries. A few minutes after 3 o'clock the Lieutenant-Governor and his guard of honour, composed of fifty-one men from Work Point Barracks in command of Captain Woods, arrived at the main entrance to the Parliament Buildings. He entered the Assembly Hall escorted by a guard, composed of officers of the local naval units and military, including Captain Heard, senior naval officer, Esquimalt Naval Station; Brig-General J. M. Ross, C.M.G., D.S.O.; Colonel Codville, Major Clarke, Major Seldon Humphreys, Major Hughes, Major Wright, Major Cobbett, Major Craig, Captain Underwood, Captain Plinter, Captain Gordon Smith, Lieut. UNION OFFICIALS EXPECT AGITATION

INDUSTRIAL PRESSURE MAY FOLLOW LABOR'S DEFEAT

Failure to Achieve Success in British Politics Likely to Result in Reversion to Strikes

LONDON, Nov. 3.—With the defeat of the Labor Government, Union officials are anxious about the industrial future of the country in view of the avowed belief of the agitators among the rank and file that Labor cannot longer build high hopes in the use of political weapons to achieve its purposes. Many of the leaders predict that there will be attempts to revert to industrial pressure. Probably the first big storm will arise out of the demands of the National Union of Railwaymen which are now being embodied in a new programme so far-reaching that it is expected the National Wage Board will find great difficulty in presenting a report which will satisfy both the companies and the Union.

May Reach Crisis in 1925

If the danger point may be reached early in 1925. Another outstanding dispute which is threatening to cause trouble, concerns the electrical supply industry in connection with which a joint railway council will meet November 14 to continue their efforts to avert a national strike. A special tribunal has reported that no case has been made out for an increase of ten shillings a week in the trade.

There is also grave unrest among the miners, and the question of hours among the various building trades remains one of the thorniest problems for some of the members of the Labor Cabinet, who, being trades union officials before they entered the Government, will mostly resume their former duties.

The expectation in well-informed quarters is that the Labor Government will resign, and that the King, in accordance with custom, will call upon Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservatives, to form a Ministry.

May Confirm Custom

Mr. Baldwin will probably progress rapidly in the allotment of posts to enable him to announce his chief appointments before the end of the week and to continue their efforts to avert a national strike. A special tribunal has reported that no case has been made out for an increase of ten shillings a week in the trade.

The political writers are indulging in their favorite amusement of appointing the Cabinet, but all their assignments are speculative. It is noteworthy, however, that all agree that Lord Curzon will not head the Foreign Office again.

The Daily Express says strong influences are working to secure the inclusion in the Ministry of either Lady Astor or the Duchess of Atholl, following the precedent set by the Labor Government in naming Miss Margaret Bondfield as Parliamentary Secretary of Labor.

One of Mr. Baldwin's chief difficulties in arranging his Cabinet, according to these writers, arises from the fact that there are more capable candidates for office than posts to give them.

On the other hand, it is contended that his big majority enables him to disregard the claims of cliques within the party, and to please himself about his selections.

Realtors Find Outlook in Victoria Is Better

Considerable Movement on Local Real Estate Market—Fifty Thousand Dollars of Waterfrontage Purchased Through One Firm Here—Sales of Homes Completed—Many Inquiries for Property From Outsiders, Especially for Waterfrontage

A GENERAL improvement in real-estate conditions on the southern and central coast of British Columbia, following a review of sales and business transacted by real estate firms in Victoria during the past few weeks. The many inquiries for choice homes and properties that have been received adequately demonstrate that people living in the city and province, and even points outside British Columbia, are anxious to invest in this city and have confidence in its future as a business centre and a city of residential charm.

During the last two weeks the sales made by one firm alone, namely, Pemberton & Son, have amounted to $50,000. The successful negotiations indicated by this sum chiefly include sales of waterfrontage homes and property, with acreage in each case varying from five to twenty acres.

These purchases have been made by people from the South and also those living in the interior of British Columbia. Pemberton & Son report many inquiries being made for various classes of real estate, but have found that the demand for waterfrontage here has been the greatest.

The firm of Gillespie, Hart & Todd has completed a number of sales, the largest being the disposal of a house on Foul Bay Road at a sum in the neighborhood of $10,000. They have also sold for clients a number of vacant lots as well as several houses.

P. R. Brown & Sons last month sold five houses in the city at prices ranging from $1,000 to $3,500. The homes that were purchased were located in the districts of Oak Bay, Fairfield and James Bay. The firm has been in receipt of a number of inquiries from prospective buyers for homes.

During the past two or three weeks there has been an active inquiry for the smaller homes, Holtermann, Porman & Company report. This concern has made several sales, the prices ranging from $2,300 to $5,000. Other local real estate offices have disposed of choice properties and homes during the past month, and present indications point to considerable activity and movement on the real estate market here during the present month.

Accused Man to Take Stand in Own Defence

EDMONTON, Nov. 3.—Hans Johnson, charged with the murder of Hugh McDermott, old-timer, at Fort Saskatchewan on August 2, whose trial opened here this morning, will take the stand in his own defence, according to a statement of his counsel, after the crown had closed its case this afternoon.

Witnesses were heard during the day. Neighbors told of a quarrel between McDermott and Johnson, of the disappearance of the murdered man and the subsequent finding of the body in a well. Death was due to blows on the head.

MONTREAL DIRECTORS' TRIAL COMMENCES

C. A. Barnard, Charged With Concurring in False Statements, Appears in Toronto Court

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—The trial of C. A. Barnard, Montreal, Home Bank director, on charges of making, using, approving and concurring in false statements of the bank's affairs, was started today by Judge "Coxsworth" in the county criminal court.

Sir Thomas White was Crown witness concerning correspondence and conferences he had with Hon. H. H. Smith, chief accountant of the bank, who was recently convicted of negligence, also was a witness, identifying the minute-book of the directors' board.

States Crown's Case

The Crown prosecutor, in stating the case the Crown would endeavor to prove, said that although Barnard was not present at the annual meeting of 1922, it would be contended that he got a copy of the statement and concurred in it.

MR. CHURCHILL'S WIN HONORED

Banquet Held at Constitutional Club Marks Success of the New Bloc of Conservative Members

SPEAKER SAYS FRIENDS APPRECIATE TORY HELP

Aim of He and Colleagues Would Be to Aid Work Against Anti-Nationalist Vices of Socialism

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The victory of Winston Churchill in the Epping division of Essex and the successes of fellow Constitutionalists elsewhere were celebrated by a dinner in their honor at the Constitutional Club, at which many prominent men were present.

The dinner was characterized by a warmth of expression of the appreciation of the foremost guest of the evening, Mr. Churchill, assuming the role of spokesman for the Constitutionalists of Parliament, said also, to some extent represented the rather large group of Liberal members who stood for Parliament with Conservative support, and they would certainly realize that fact in any action they would take in the new Parliament.

The aim of the Constitutionalists would be to aid the Conservatives at every stage against the un-English and anti-national vices of Socialism, he declared, was the very antithesis of Liberalism.

Revive Singapore Plan

Mr. Churchill said he looked forward to seeing the new Parliament take up the broken pledges which had been given to the Dominions at the conference. He also desired to see the spade set to work again on the British navy base at Singapore. Sir Hamar Greenwood, who was elected as a Constitutional, also spoke and declared that the staggered fact of the general election was the increase in the Socialist vote. This fact, he said, should emphasize the necessity for drawing into their ranks the millions of people who were in sympathy with Constitutionalism.

Lord Birkenhead commented on the increased Socialist vote. In his opinion the first task of the state-ship of Great Britain was to solve the problem of unemployment.

OTTAWA REFUSES TO RENEW PERMIT

TEMPORARY CERTIFICATE TO LOAN CORPORATION EXPIRES

Action in Connection With Great West Permanent Company

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—The temporary certificate issued under the Loan Companies Act, under which the Great West Permanent Loan Company of Winnipeg has been operating since the early part of the year, has expired and has not been renewed, according to an announcement by the Department of Insurance.

The certificate of a company may be cancelled when it is believed that it is unsafe for the public to transact business with it. It is the authority of this provision that Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, on the advice of the Department of Insurance, which has charge of the administration of the act, has taken this stand in the interests of the public.

Under Close Supervision

Early this year the department requested the Great West Permanent Loan Company to give up its savings bank business. The company has been under close supervision of the Department of Insurance for some time past, and numerous deputations from Winnipeg have waited upon the acting Minister of Finance within the last few months, endeavoring to strengthen the company's position. It is known that the company had approximately $1,000,000 tied up in the Marlborough Hotel in London.

Most of the bonds of the company are held in Scotland. R. T. Alexander, of Winnipeg, who is well known in Canadian financial circles, is president of the company.

OPIMUM CONFERENCE TO CHECK SMOKING

ESTIMATE OF WORLD'S NEED OF DRUG PREPARED

International Probe to Submit to the League of Nations Limit for Medicinal Purposes

GENEVA, Nov. 3.—The international opium conference today began devising means of checking opium smoking. The conference under the auspices of the League of Nations is the precursor of a second and more important international consideration of the opium question which will open November 17 with official American participation. The present meeting is expected to furnish the second estimate of just how much opium is used for smoking purposes so that the meeting on the 17th may formulate measures limiting the production of opium and narcotic drugs to the extent needed for medicinal and scientific purposes.

The nations represented today were Great Britain, China, France, India, Japan, Holland, Portugal and Spain. Edwin L. Neville, opium expert of the American State Department, was present as spectator.

The Chinese delegation received a cablegram from the Chinese National Anti-Opium Association at Shanghai urging it to fight for rigid curtailment of opium production to "strict medical requirements and declaring the Chinese people as a whole were desirous of having the opium trade abolished.

The plenary sessions of the international opium conference are to be open to the public, but the committee meetings will be held in private. The conference began its sessions today under the auspices of the League of Nations in an endeavor to work out some means for checking the smoking of opium and to study also a method to do away with the illicit growth of the opium poppy in China. Most of today's session was devoted to a lively debate on whether the conference should be public or private.

LABOR PLANNED TO DESTROY LIBERALS

Minister of Health Confirms Pre-Election Rumor as to Intention of Socialists

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Assertions that were made during the elections to the effect that the Labor party intended at all costs to destroy the Liberal party, if possible, seem to have been confirmed in a recent speech by John Wheatly, Minister of Health in the Labor Government.

Mr. Wheatly is quoted as saying: "The field is now cleared of the encumbering and embarrassing Liberal party. They may be dismissed without serious consideration in future politics. The overwhelming Tory majority considerably hastened the end of the Liberal party, which was too selfish to make sacrifices even to preserve its existence."

"The next parliamentary will witness the fiercest political fight in British history."

Mr. Wheatly was re-elected in Glasgow last Wednesday.

DOUKHOBOR CHIEF LAID TO LONG REST

SEPULCHRED ON AN EMINENCE OVERLOOKING BRILLIANT

Vast Multitude Pay Tribute to Memory of Peter Verigin at Day-Long Funeral Service

NELSON, B.C., Nov. 3.—Never before in recorded history have the Kootenay hills looked down on the like of the scene they beheld yesterday, when from 6,000 to 8,000 persons, a living carpet for the rock-rimmed basin, saw the body of Peter Verigin, heretofore known as Peter Verigin, lowered into a sepulchre blasted from the rock on an eminence overlooking Brilliant, British Columbia headquarters of the Doukhobor sect. From early forenoon until the shades of night fell, dirges like organ music from the throats of thousands of worshippers, rose on the otherwise still air interminably, except when the ceremonial required silence for the purposes of the orations over the dead.

Commencing with the lying in state in the official residence, the body of the late leader of the Doukhobor sect, the president of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, was the centre of day-long ceremonies and lamentations. In orderly ranks about the brick mansion were grouped thousands of "disciples," the women holding aloft young evergreens as the different groups kept up their unutterably sad musical lamentations.

Dressed in Gayest Colors

Some groups of men were distinguished by wearing red flowers. For the most part the women and girls wore their gayest colors, though there and there small groups of black-robed women appeared. Tears streamed down the faces of the older folks, men and women alike, and when the casket was at length borne from the house for the first of the orations, weeping became vocal and unrestrained, and even the hundreds of visitors from Nelson were affected.

Anastasia Verigin, niece of the late leader, was in charge of the ceremonies, which included an oration in Russian by Max Haskin, of Nelson. From time to time men and women went on their knees in the mud at points in the service. Electric lights had been strung to the burial point so the exercises need not terminate with dusk.

Nearly 1,000 visitors who had come by special train and by automobile, 1,000 Doukhobors from the Grand Forks colony, and the 5,000 on the Kootenay River below Nelson, in and tributary to Brilliant, were present.

Peter Verigin was one of those killed in the explosion in a car of a Kettle Valley train near Farron, B.C., last Wednesday.

ASKS DAMAGES FOR BREAKING CONTRACT

Granby Company Sued by William Meehan in Vancouver for Terminating Logging Agreement

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3.—A writ claiming $100,000 damages has been issued against the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power Company by Messrs. Parke, Paton, Emerson, Stultz & Sloan, on behalf of William Meehan, Vancouver.

Meehan alleges that the company committed a breach of an agreement whereby he was logging their timber on Alice Arm. The contract was entered into last January and the arrangement was terminated in September. The timber was spruce and hemlock.

Under the plant quarantine law, all motorists entering California must submit to official inspection of their cars and personal belongings.

MEXICO MODIFIES TRADE INTERDICTION

British Shipments Placed on Same Footing as Other Countries Without Consular Agents

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A modification of the attitude of the Mexican Government towards consular relations with Great Britain has been brought about through inquiries by the British Chambers of Commerce. The Foreign Office has been advised by the British diplomatic agent in Mexico City that the Mexican Government will accept shipments from Britain in the future under the same conditions as from other countries where Mexico does not have consular agents.

The arrangement requires that shippers mail a number of documents to a Mexican port of entry where they are filed with the customs and the agents, and the shippers are advised later whether the shipment in question is allowable.

These conditions, entailing extended delays, will seriously affect England's 25,000-pound monthly exports to Mexico, although many shippers already have made arrangements to send goods by way of ports in neutral countries.

Drinking Wood Alcohol Causes Three Deaths

BRANDON, Man., Nov. 3.—Three men, about whose names there is some doubt, died here during the week-end as the result, it is reported, of drinking wood alcohol. A fourth man, James White, a negro, is likely to recover. One of the three, giving his name as Hurdie and said to be from Hamilton, Ont., walked into the General Hospital, Henry Baker is believed to be the name of the second man, but his address is unknown. The third had discharge papers from a Quebec battalion on him with the name "Robert Beal." The rest of his name is being obliterated. An inquest will be held.

Killed on Way to Church

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 3.—Joseph Roberts, well-known farmer of Pelly, Ont., his wife and two children, Lenwood, aged 11, and Lavina, aged 10, were instantly killed Sunday morning when their automobile was struck by a locomotive at a crossing about twelve miles east of this city while on their way to church.

Oddities in the News

First Fountain Pen Found—Ship Moves Without Sails—New Fossils in Alaska—John D.'s Latest Joke.

CHICAGO.—The ancestor of the modern fountain pen has been found in the ruins of Kish, the Sumerian capital, nine miles from ancient Babylon.

Word of the discovery of a fountain pen, the oldest known writing implement, was cabled to D. C. Davies, curator of the Field Museum of Natural History today.

The stylus resembles a present-day lead pencil, according to the cabled description, and the writer, by twisting it in his fingers, was able to form the wedge formed characters, known as cuneiform script, on the moist clay tablets which formed the ancient Babylonian "paper," some 6,500 years ago.

BERLIN.—A sailing ship without sails has been invented by Anton Flettner, director of the Flettner concern of Berlin.

The invention is based on entirely new experiments with the effect of wind on moving bodies. The experiments were conducted at the aerodynamic experimental station at Goettingen.

The ship with the new equipment has just returned from a long trial trip on the high seas.

The new mode of propulsion, according to dispatches from Kiel, proved to be a complete success.

The masts which formerly bore sails have been transformed into tower-like structures on which the wind bears down under conditions within the control of the captain and drives the ship forward.

Experts predict that the invention, which is simplicity itself, will have a revolutionary effect on transatlantic traffic and bring about a substantial reduction in the cost of transportation.

Strange as it may seem, this method of propulsion was described in a purely fictitious manner in one of the late Marie Corelli's novels, "Life Everlasting." It is thought that Mr. Flettner got his invention from suggestions offered in this book. Those who have read this novel will remember the strange vessel which moved without wind or engine.

SEATTLE.—Discovery of a deep channel in sedimentary rock, exposing many fossil clams, mussels and sea worms in the valley of the Ten Thousand Smokes in the Katmai National Monument, Alaska, was announced by Roy Gilley Kodlak, Alaska, in a letter received today by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce. Gilley said scientists believe the fossils were deposited when the region was under water about 150,000 years. He also told of finding a group of hot springs on the side of Observation Mountain, ten miles from the valley.

NEW YORK.—John D. Rockefeller has a new joke which he enjoys telling his friends. He relates it as follows:

"I was up in the central part of the state this summer to visit some of the spots where I spent my childhood. My car had stopped, and I was looking around when an old farmer came up and started to talk to me.

"He didn't know who I was. We chatted together for about five minutes, and then he asked me where I was going.

"I'm going to Heaven," I replied with a smile.

"Get out," he said, "you ain't got enough gas."

PAY LAST HONORS TO DEAD MEMBER

FUNERAL OF MR. J. A. MCKIE HELD AT VANCOUVER

Many Attended Obedience of M.P.P.—Elected, Who Was Killed in Explosion on Kettle Valley Line

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3.—Accorded the full honors of the Masonic rite and with thousands of Vancouver citizens paying their last tributes, the body of John A. McKie, M.P.P., elected for Greenwood-Grand Forks, was laid to rest Sunday afternoon in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The funeral service, held in First Presbyterian Church, was conducted by Rev. R. G. MacBeth, D.D., of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, who is an intimate friend of the family. He was assisted by Rev. J. Richmond Craig, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Jacob Wright and Rev. J. R. Robertson, of Grand Forks, who had traveled to the city to take part in the service.

Mr. MacBeth, in his address, said it was eminently fitting that the funeral service should be held in the church which Mr. McKie had attended as a young lad, had been admitted to church membership, and had done so much good among his fellowmen. He had been one of the foremost among many fine young men who had gone out of that church to serve in other spheres of labor. His widow also had gone out from that church and was a member of one of the oldest families in Vancouver.

Tribute to Pioneers and Their Son

Mr. McKie's father and mother had been great workers in that church in the early days, said Dr. MacBeth, and he felt like paying a tribute to these early pioneers. Mr. McKie, he had been an elder in the church and his son had become one after him. In critical hours these people had given all they possessed that the church might continue to live and they might as a result have expected great things from the son.

No son could ever give evidence of a more beautiful devotion to his parents, continued Dr. MacBeth. His church had been his foremost interest in the world because he had been so trained to think. When he went into the public life of this country it meant much to the welfare of the community.

"I can think of Canada saying to us, 'Give us men to match our mountains; give us men to match our plains.' We need men with noble aspirations. John McKie was such a man," said Dr. MacBeth.

During the service favorite hymns of the late Mr. McKie were sung by the choir and congregation, including "The Lord Is My Shepherd," and "Rock of Ages."

Masonic Service

The Masonic part of the service, under the auspices of Vimy Lodge, No. 97, A. F. & A. M., was directed by the worshipful master, J. W. Albright, assisted by Fred Copeland, director of ceremonies, and W. Tyne, secretary. About 100 members of the lodge were present wearing their regalia. The apron and other Masonic emblems of the late Mr. McKie lay on top of the coffin during the service.

Among those present in the church were Mr. R. H. Pooley, M.P.P., elect, Provincial Conservative leader, and Mr. Charles Woodward, M.P.P., elect. At the close of the service the coffin was carried out by the pallbearers, all members of the Masonic order, who were Rev. Jacob Wright, J. Clark, D. J. McLennan, T. White, P. Anderson and H. Collier.

Thousands of persons lined Hastings Street as the cortege moved off toward the cemetery, with the Masons marching immediately behind the funeral carriage.

Floral Tributes

Evidence of the esteem in which the late Mr. McKie was held was shown in the many floral tributes which accompanied the body. A huge wreath was sent by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative Party in the House of Commons. Among the floral tributes sent by public bodies were those from Roseland Preceptory No. 28, employees of Boundary Iron Works, Boundary Chapter, No. 1, Fidelity Lodge No. 32, Trail; City Cartage Company, members-elect of the Legislative Assembly of British Columbia, Grand Forks Conservative Association, United Ladies' Aid, King Edward Lodge, Greenwood; Canadian Girls in Training, Kettle Valley Creamery, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Women's Auxiliary of the Conservative Association, Buck Creek Conservative Association, 1, O. D. E. and Vimy Lodge No. 97.

The interment in the cemetery was conducted by the officers of Vimy Lodge.

Mr. McKie was killed in the explosion, which wrecked a car of a Kettle Valley train near Farron, B.C., last Wednesday.

NOT SO WET HERE AS IN VANCOUVER

REPORT GIVES TERMINAL CITY BIG CONSUMPTION

Victoria Residents Are Spending About Ninety Thousand Dollars Monthly on Wet Goods

From October 31, 1923, to March 31, 1924, a period of six months, a total of $237,049 was paid into Victoria government liquor stores for various brands of wet goods. This works out at about $96,000 which Victoria spends for the stuff that Omar Khayyam used to write about, or approximately $2.31 for every man, woman and child, every month. The figures are obtained in the annual report of the Liquor Control Board, tabled yesterday afternoon by the Attorney-General.

While the figures for Victoria appear large, in comparison to the liquor consumption in Vancouver they are very modest indeed. However, the Terminal City has always been a much wetter metropolis than the Provincial Capital.

Net liquor sales in Vancouver from October 31, 1923, to March 31, 1924, six months, were $1,373,801.20, or $253,422.53 a month. This produces a per capita consumption per month of liquor valued at $2.29, nearly a dollar greater than the per capita use of wet refreshments in this city.

Prosecutions Less
 In addition to revenue from the sale of liquor, figures on which were announced last Spring, the government, during the last fiscal year, derived $30,603.46 from the taxation of liquor not purchased from government stores. This is approximately $4,500 in excess of the amount collected from this source in the previous year.

A decrease of 804 in prosecutions under the liquor law is reported by Mr. Manson in his comparison between the last fiscal year and the year previous. The decrease was chiefly confined to the number of prosecutions under sections of the law forbidding the selling of liquor, the possession of a license, drunkenness in a public place and selling of beer or hard beer.

Clubs licensed by the Liquor Control Board under the new club laws passed at the last session of the Legislature numbered fifty-eight, of which ten are in Vancouver and nine in Victoria. Revenue received from club licenses amounted to $5,450.

Interdiction orders issued by magistrates and police chiefs to prevent excessive drinking numbered sixty, but two hundred orders of revocation also were issued. Mr. Manson's report states: "Twenty-one letters of authority, authorizing police to search premises without a warrant, were issued by the Attorney-General under new amendments to the liquor law."

That considerable quantities of liquor are used for medicinal purposes in British Columbia is indicated by the Attorney-General's statement that 4,203 prescriptions were filled at government stores and drug stores during the last fiscal year.

Liquor permits issued during the last fiscal year brought the government a revenue of $170,387. Individual permits numbered $1,541; individual malt liquor permits, 4,326; permits for druggists, physicians, dentists and veterinarians, eighty-four; permits for ministers of the gospel, seventy-one; permits for persons engaged in mechanical or manufacturing business or in scientific pursuits, three. No special permits for banquets were issued. It is stated.

NEW LEGISLATION NAMED IN SPEECH

ADDRESS FROM THORNE REVIEWS PROGRESS

Mention is Made of Amendments to Timber Royalties Act and Racing Regulations

Two matters of future legislation were contained in the King's Speech read yesterday by Lieutenant-Governor Walter D. Nichol at the opening of the thirteenth session of the British Columbia Legislature. Amendments to the Timber Royalties Act, and new regulations seeking to control horse racing in the Province. The speech from the Throne followed: "I welcome you to the first session of the sixteenth Parliament of British Columbia."

"During the present year the Province has again been honored by a visit from His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. While this visit was entirely unofficial, it evoked demonstrations which evidenced the continued affection of the people for the person of His Royal Highness, and gave renewed assurance of their loyalty to the Throne and Empire."

Railway Rates
 "The reduction in railway transportation rates, resultant upon the efforts of my Government, has had the effect of immensely increasing the amount of grain for export shipped through British Columbia ports. It is the intention of the Government to continue its efforts to obtain a greater measure of justice in respect to railway rates."

"Some uncertainty has existed in the lumber industry during the year, but overseas lumber shipments have been well maintained, particularly to the Atlantic seaboard, and the outlook for the future is encouraging."

"Amendments to the Timber Royalty Act will be submitted for your consideration."

"Construction of the university buildings at Point Grey well advanced, and a subdivision of Crown lands set apart for aiding this work has been made and provided with the necessary utilities. A unit of this subdivision will be placed on sale at an early date."

"A bill to regulate horse racing within the Province will be submitted for your consideration."

"A survey of the educational system of the Province is now being made."

"There has been a large increase in the number of industrial establishments within the Province, with a corresponding advance in the number of employees and amount of pay-roll."

"The percentage of Orientals engaged in industries has materially decreased."

"The value of agricultural products within the Province continues to increase."

"Financial assistance has been extended to the Berrygrowers' Co-operative Association with satisfactory results."

"The products of the metalliferous mines show a steady increase in value."

"The value of British Columbia fishery products has increased during the past year."

"British Columbia exhibits at the British Empire Exhibition attracted great deal of attention, and much publicity has been gained. This has been reflected in increased orders for lumber and fruits, and also in more numerous inquiries as to opportunities for mining investments."

Reorganization
 "Departmental reorganization is proceeding, wherever practical with a view to securing greater efficiency and lessening cost."

"The statutes enacted at the last session of the Legislature have been incorporated with the draft revision previously prepared, and a proclamation has been issued bringing into force, on or after the first day of the month of January, the new statutes so revised and consolidated."

"The Public Accounts for the fiscal year 1923-24 will be presented at an early date."

"The annual report of the Liquor Control Board will be placed before you."

"The Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure, prepared with due regard to economy and the necessities of the public service, will be submitted for your consideration at a future date."

"Gentlemen, I now leave you in full confidence that the work entrusted to you will be faithfully performed, and I pray that the blessing of God shall attend your labors."

The Session

Shadow of Tragedy—
 Strange Seat-Fellows—
 A Notable Absentee—
 Pleasing Fiction—
 The Lighter Touch

The Press Gallery, Monday.—The shadow of tragedy fell upon the Legislature Chamber today, and there was a hint of mortality about all the proceedings incident to the formal opening of the session of the sixteenth Parliament of British Columbia. This angustion was conveyed by the wreaths which lay upon one of the desks. It was for what was to have been occupied by Mr. John McKie, late member-elect for Grand Forks, killed last week by a train on the Kettle Valley railway.

Those wreaths and that vacant desk seemed to wall about the ceremonial and the color supplied by the naval and military aides and guard of honor for what was to come when the Lieutenant-Governor had left the Chamber. Hon. J. D. Maclean, speaking for the government side of the House, moved a vote of condolence with the family of the dead member. Dr. Maclean turned from the formal and dignified phrases of his exordium to a personal note of his sorrow for the passing of an old friend and good comrade. The crowded House was impressed by the real human side of it; and not less by the difficulty suggested by Mr. J. H. H. Pooley, speaking for the first time as leader of the Opposition, when he moved a vote of condolence. Both speeches were successful in a sense of real loss and of human sorrow; and they lent an added touch of high seriousness to the occasion.

The temporary arrangements of seats grouped to provide room for the numerous guests of members, gave an air of unreality to the proprieties of honorable member with his honorable member. Thus it was found that Major Richard B. Burde, member for Alberni, was sandwiched between Hon. T. G. Coventry, member for Sanich, and Mr. N. A. Wallinger, member for Cranberry. Mr. Coventry was flanked, appropriately on his left, by Mr. Tom Uphill, Labor member for Fernie.

The opening of the House was not less by reason of absent figures than by the presence of its rivals. The memories of few habitues of the Chamber run not back to the time when Mr. W. J. Bower, K.C., was not there, and the front benches to take his part in the ceremony. The figure of the doughty former member for Vancouver City and leader of the Opposition, mislaid today. Mr. Bower was not there, even as a spectator. Mr. John Hart, lately Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, was one of the most interested spectators of the scene; and Mr. Hart was as irreproachable in demeanor, immaculate in dress and genial in manner as ever.

Joseph B. Clearlake, one of the Liberal members for Victoria City who went down to defeat at the last election, looked on from the visitors' seats at the preliminaries of debate in which he formerly took part. He was accompanied by his bride, with whom he has just returned from his wedding in England, and he was the recipient of good wishes from all parts of the House.

His Honor came into the House, accompanied by his impressive guard of honor, naval and military officers active and retired, and he found no Speaker to receive him. There was enacted the ancient but still amusing little fiction of His Honor refusing to have anything to do with the House until that body should have taken unto itself a Speaker. Through the mouth of the Hon. William Sloan, and speaking in his newly-acquired dignity of Provincial Secretary, His Honor intimated that nothing could be done, in manner as ever.

He could not even be informed for what purpose they had been summoned to that place, until this little formality had been attended to. His Honor

There are lighter moments. The House reverts for a brief space to the manners of an older day, and there is a motion to prevent any stranger person from printing reports of the proceedings. The Press gallery, remembering that it is an assemblage of stranger persons, wonders what it is doing there; and then it remembers also that this is part of the colony and tradition of the thing; and that if this motion were taken seriously, there would be a revolution in parliamentary institutions. The Speaker is presented with a revised copy of the Revised Statutes of British Columbia, in three volumes as manuals as the Speaker himself, and there are cheers as a small page staggers up to the Chair with this epitome of legislative wisdom.

The end has nearly come, but there are a few more incidents of the lighter sort. Hon. Ministers have the honor to present to Mr. Speaker the last annual reports of their departments. Major Richard Burde, M.C., has the honor to present the last annual report of The Searchlight. Hon. Provincial Secretary Sloan has the honor to present Mr. Speaker with the report of the Royal Commission into the affairs of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. There are smiles, and cheers, both of the respective sort. Hon. Premier Oliver moves that the House do now adjourn.

A certain defeat at the recent polls in Vancouver City prevents the House from being in any danger of government by the major generals, but it is rich in the military touch. It is a record number. Vancouver City went out again, accompanied by his impressive aides.

Hon. John Oliver, blooming if not exactly fresh, from his electoral red flower of a harmless political life in the buttonhole of his expansive frock coat, rose in his place, and moved the election of Mr. John Arthur Buckham, member for Columbia, as Speaker of the House. Hon. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, seconded the motion. It was put by the clerk, and officers in the House heard no nay against it. Mr. Buckham was declared elected. Mr. Buckham, square and solid in the only other frock coat in the House which the Premier could have worn, was escorted to his seat amid cheers. Mr. Buckham thanks the House for this honor. He has done him, and retired, and find his robes of office, to find His Honor, to really open the House at last.

His Honor came back. The ceremony of the opening of the session of the Legislature is a tradition in the House of the English-speaking people, goes on. The voice of the century is heard when the House, again speaking in the voice of Hon. W. J. Sloan, reiterates once more its immemorial prerogative. The House claims the right of free speech. The speaker claims the right of access to His Honor's person "at reasonable times." The King's speech is read. His Honor departs, followed by his officers in blue and gold and khaki.

It is not over yet, and it has only lasted a short half hour. Ceremonious as it is, it is probably the least tedious half hour which this House will see for weeks to come. The voice of centuries of tradition and precedent is still raised, in this House as in a score of others, which meet under the institutions which have grown up under the Crown and flag of the British people. "Now I do certify, by writ returned to me," says the clerk, and proceeds to read the names of members elected. The roll is called. All are present and correct, save one only; and in his place, on his desk, in his chair, there are mourning wreaths. Hon. A. M. Manson, Attorney-General, moves the first reading of a bill to amend the Court of Appeal Act. The first session of the sixteenth Parliament of British Columbia is in being.

There are lighter moments. The House reverts for a brief space to the manners of an older day, and there is a motion to prevent any stranger person from printing reports of the proceedings. The Press gallery, remembering that it is an assemblage of stranger persons, wonders what it is doing there; and then it remembers also that this is part of the colony and tradition of the thing; and that if this motion were taken seriously, there would be a revolution in parliamentary institutions. The Speaker is presented with a revised copy of the Revised Statutes of British Columbia, in three volumes as manuals as the Speaker himself, and there are cheers as a small page staggers up to the Chair with this epitome of legislative wisdom.

A certain defeat at the recent polls in Vancouver City prevents the House from being in any danger of government by the major generals, but it is rich in the military touch. It is a record number. Vancouver City has two, both Liberals—Brigadier-General Victor Odium and Capt. Ian Mackenzie. Victoria has no less than three, all Conservatives—Capt. J. Hinchcliffe, Capt. H. D. Twigg and Major Gus Lyons. There is Colonel C. Peck, V.C., Conservative, of the Islands, a much-loved old war horse. There is Col. Fred Blair, Conservative, of Creston. There is Major George Walkem, Provincial, of Richmond-Point Grey. There is Major Richard Burde, Independent, of Alberni, the licensed wit of the House, not suspected of any ulterior designs upon the precarious Liberal majority. And there is Capt. Charles Leary, of Kaslo-Blochin. It is a large roll call, a full fifth of the entire House, and the pundits wonder if its units will sometimes forget party ties, and march down some day and want something done, in the name of old watchwords, which were potent about this time six years ago, when some of these men were thinking that their job in Flanders and France was nearly over.

Government Considers Proposal to Have It Taken Over by Provincial Department of Labor

Before the present session of the Legislature is over, the British Columbia Returned Soldiers' Commission will probably be abolished and its work taken over by the Provincial Department of Labor.

This change will be made partly because of the Oliver Government's desire to curtail expenditure and prevent duplication of administrative machinery, and partly as a result of a Dominion-wide scheme to merge returned soldier employment agencies with the bureaus operated by the various government departments of labor.

The question has already been before the Liberal caucus, and while some opposition has already developed, it is regarded as probable that the Government will stand behind a measure aimed at amalgamation of the two bodies.

Lieut.-Col. E. A. Robertson, B.S.O., is head of the Returned Soldiers' Commission. The department's operation costs about $12,000 annually.

OPENING OF SESSION

The Speech from the Throne at the opening of yesterday's session of the Legislature is mainly occupied with a recapitulation of fact. There has, perhaps, never been a Speech so barren in the promise of legislation to come. Possibly for this reason it has its merits. The only legislative forecast comprised in the Speech is the regulation of horse racing, and the Estimates. Each year the Speech from the Throne is telling less and less of the Government's programme of legislation, possibly because a policy of procrastination in the preparation of bills is being pursued. The best that can be hoped from the latest Speech is that it does not mean a glut of eleven-hour legislation which will be put through in ill-digested shape.

The Speech gives no indication of the Government's policy in the putting into effect of the people's wishes respecting the more open and public beer as determined by a plebiscite taken in conjunction with the Provincial election of June last. It ought to have been intimated if it is the intention of the Government to let the Legislature decide how the people's will is to be interpreted, or whether it will be interpreted on the basis of the Plebiscite Bill. In the matter of horse racing there is a delicate situation that may ensue. The curtailment that is proposed is somewhat drastic, too drastic in our belief. Horse racing should be a form of amusement over which the Federal Government has complete control. It is not quite clear that the demand of a majority public opinion is embodied in a resolution for drastic curtailment that will be put before the Government. Presumably the Bill authorizing the curtailment must be a governmental one as it involves public revenues. Whatever is the nature of the Bill it will probably be challenged as ultra vires of the Province, which means that by what is proposed heavy legal expenses will be involved. If the Province wins it will suffer, as well, loss of revenue through a curtailment of racing.

Probably a good deal more has been left out of the Speech than is contained therein, and especially in reference to the Government's intentions. Most of the subjects referred to will be dealt with in the same way and more in detail in the Budget speech, and there will be a plethora of debate arising out of each, including duplication and reduplication of opinions which lead nowhere. It might almost be believed that British Columbia has a paucity of problems if the Speech is accepted literally. We are told, for instance, that a survey of the educational system of the Province is now being made. It might have been added that the prospects are that there will be no report on the subject during the present session, and that any action thought desirable for reformation in educational matters will thereby be shelved for a year. The relieving feature of the Speech, however, is that it does not forecast any new and large expenditures. It is to be hoped that in this regard, and it is to be hoped that by the time the Estimates come round they will show substantial reductions in taxation. The outstanding problem of British Columbia is to create a feeling of tangible hope among our citizens by relieving them of some of the onerous monetary burden which they carry. On this account all taxpayers will be at one in saying "Amen" to that portion of the Speech which points out that "departmental reorganization is proceeding with a view to securing greater efficiency and lessening cost."

ESTEEMED PUBLIC SERVANTS

Two well-known citizens long connected with the Federal Service in this community have just been superannuated in the persons of Dr. G. L. Milne and Mr. William Henderson. Dr. Milne has been head of the health department of Immigration here, and Mr. Henderson has been district resident architect. During 45 years' residence in Victoria, Dr. Milne has become very widely known. He is efficient, persevering and painstaking in the discharge of his duties. At one time he sat as a member of the Provincial Legislature. He was a School Trustee for several years, and an active member of the old Board of Trade. In all matters relating to civic advancement he has always taken a keen interest. As a church adherent he is a staunch and true Christian and holds deep views where morals are concerned. A man of his type and probity could not have failed to build up many lasting friendships during such a long sojourn, and Dr. Milne has a host of friends. He has well earned a rest after a career of active service.

Mr. William Henderson has spent half a century in the Government's service. They have been years of hard work, but diluted with that pleasure which keen attention to duty always gives. It is an epoch in the life of a man when he goes into retirement after such a period of duty as Mr. Henderson has undergone, but it is an epoch which must always be mixed with feelings of satisfaction when it is the reward of service well rendered. Mr. Henderson gave of the best that was in him, and in giving it to the service of the Federal Government he found time, too, to take an active interest in the municipal politics of Oak Bay, where he occupied the position of Reeve for a year. He is highly thought of by all, and to both himself and Dr. Milne the best hope of the community will go out for their happiness and long life, free from official cares.

THE TEMPERANCE CAUSE

The triumph of the Prohibition cause in the recent Ontario plebiscite was not pronounced. Not as many people voted on the plebiscite as on the referendum of October, 1919. In 1919, however, the majority for the Ontario Temperance Act was ten times as great as it was last month. It is estimated that 300,000 more voted against the O.T.A. in the plebiscite than in the referendum. It was admitted that, under conditions that prevailed prior to the plebiscite, the task of enforcing the law was a heavy, if not impossible, one. It has, most assuredly, not been made easier by the fact that it is now supported by only about fifty-two per cent of those who voted.

To enforce Prohibition at all adequately a vast majority public opinion in its favor is needed. That is the experience everywhere, and especially in countries where there is democratic government. We do not say for a moment that there is any extension for violations of a Prohibition Act simply because a large body of public opinion is against it. The law is the law and should be observed. The fact, however, is that people will not observe it, and wherever Prohibition is in force it has been a source of constant expenses for the machinery of enforcement.

Prohibition is repressive legislation, and it is expensive on that account. Its supporters should revise their methods. Temperance is mainly a propaganda of education, not of widdling the big stick. People can be trained to be sober, but they cannot be dragged into sobriety. A nation, a large proportion of which looks askance at the idea of religious instruction in the schools, is not a fertile field for the dissemination of certain moral ethics. Christianity and temperance should go hand in hand, and a first step in the permanent institution of a greater measure of temperance than now exists in this country of ours is for our people. Prohibitionists and others, to realize the place that Christianity should have in the life of the people.

MR. A. J. DALLAIN

The heartiest good wishes of the community will follow Mr. A. J. Dallain into his retirement from the service of the Federal Marine and Fisheries Department. For twenty years he had been associated with that service, associated honorably and in capacities which won him the good will and personal liking of all with whom he came in contact. From every aspect he was an able and faithful servant of the Government. Outside his departmental duties he has come into contact with the people through his enthusiastic connection with the work of the St. John Ambulance Association in which he has been a prominent figure locally for a number of years. Mr. Dallain is one of those who believe that whatever skill he has acquired should be at the service of his fellow citizens. He has done excellent work for the cause of first aid in this community and his name will be long remembered in this respect. All who know him, and their name is legion, will wish him many happy and useful years of life in his retirement from an office to which he brought and in which he emphasized the traditions of useful and loyal service.

"If," says The London Times, "the present rulers of Russia, having the resources of the Russian Empire at their unconditional disposal, still want money, let them go to the world's capital markets and learn the conditions on which they may have it. If, as is probable, they meet with rebuffs, it will be, not from mere capitalist prejudice, but because the commercial communities of the world have learned by bitter experience that it is fatal to industry and commerce to subordinate commercial decisions to political considerations."

The Kansas City Times says: "The League of Nations has only one chance of getting the United States into its political fold, and that chance is through the Democratic Party. By that party and its leaders, including its present candidate for President, the League has been represented as a bly white dove of peace, a sacred and exalted band of brothers, whose sole aim and purpose in a wicked world was to snatch humanity from its sins, particularly the sin of international politics and war."

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

There are many imperfect people in this imperfect world—mostly men. The reader will note that we have not lived in this imperfect world without learning something about the virtue of discretion. Yet it is a fact that the only person we ever met in this imperfect world who was without a single vice was a mere man.

This paragon was introduced to us many years ago by an admirable woman who was blessed with many daughters and a few sons. Like all good women, she was anxious to see her daughters settled in life. One of these daughters was about to be married to a man without a single vice, and we were invited to the wedding. On the wedding day we were ceremoniously introduced to the paragon.

He was a tall and stately man. His tall, square hat was set upon a tall, square head. His forehead terminated in a peak on his skull as the cover of a soap dish terminates in a knob. His eyes beneath a square forehead were small and deep-set like the eyes of a dogfish. His nose was square and had been squared off in such a manner as to display more of his square nostrils than was artistically necessary. His chin was square, his shoulders were square, his knees were square, and his feet were square down to his toes. His black clothes looked as if they had been cut out in squares and tacked upon his square frame. Some part of him faced squarely every cardinal point of the compass. When he walked his square-toed shoes squeaked, giving an impression that every joint in his squarely-constructed body needed lubrication.

But the most remarkable feature of this man who did not smoke tobacco, did not drink intoxicating liquor of any kind, did not play golf and therefore never used a naughty word, was dead to the seductive influence of every woman save one who was without a single vice, in short—the most extraordinary feature of this paragon was his face. If the heart within that square breast was discharging its ordinary functions, there was no proof of it in the square face. The Harvey theory of the circulation of the blood, did not apply to the case of this man without a single vice.

We were so overcome by the apparition that we were tempted to seize the man by the scruff of the neck, drag him down to the public-house at the corner and force him to take a deep draught of something as hot and strong as Quilp concocted on the occasion of his last convivial meeting with Sampson Brass. The man without a single vice needed to be inoculated with the germ of some sort of vice in order to transform him into something human.

Now the most extraordinary feature of this story, which is not a parable, is that the man who had not a single human emotion was not a single human emotion was a "Mac." His ancestors had come to Canada from the Highlands of Scotland, where all the people love to dance and where most of the people like to indulge in an occasional "splore." It may be that the natural fire in the blood of this particular specimen had been quenched by the severe cold of many Eastern Winters. All that is certain is the fact that a peculiar combination of forces had produced a freak, and this freak was regarded as the next thing to a perfect man—a man without a single vice.

We were young and thoughtless in those days. We knew the bride well, and told her perhaps too plainly what we thought of her virtuous groom. We said he looked well in Madame Tussaud's collection of wax figures. Then there was a scene and we fled from the spot in great haste. The bride, however, was not so easily deterred. She demonstrated that we were right. The virtues of the virtuous man did not assure him long life. His heart was not performing the ordained functions of an ordinary heart. He was too good a man for this wicked world, and God took him shortly after. Although this a true story and not a parable, there may be a moral attached to it.

The date of the annual municipal elections is drawing near, there will be a number of candidates seeking the suffrages of the intelligent municipal electorate, and we expect some of those candidates will hint in their pre-election addresses that no critic, however critical, can find blots or blemishes in their public records. Blessed is he who always does the right thing at the right time and can deftly dodge around a corner at an embarrassing time.

We note without any considerable amount of interest that various municipal bodies, representative and unrepresentative, are discussing the advisability of dealing with the weekly half holiday. Such discussions must be purely academic. The weekly half holiday is a statutory institution. If it is to be abolished or amended, the Provincial Legislature must do the abolishing or amending. The Government, which is supposed to control or direct the operations of the Legislature, will not attempt to tamper with the provisions of the half-holiday Act at the present time. It dare not do it, for the Labor members of the House are "the balance of power," and the Labor members are presumably all in favor of the half holiday Act.

Then there is the position of the Lady Member of the Legislature to be considered. She is the mother of the measure, and everybody knows what a temper the female of any of the species flies into when the life of the offspring is threatened. To be sure, the Government might treat the half holiday Act as it has pretended to treat the liquor Act when it became embarrassing, throw it "on the floor of the House" and watch the ensuing scrimmage.

Canada's Story Day by Day

By BLODWIN DAVIES

This was a busy day in Port Prince of Wales in 1769, for, acting upon orders from the Governors of the Hudson's Bay Company in London, Samuel Hearne was on the eve of setting out on the first of his great voyages to the interior of Western Canada. The ancient company had been exploring the land since 1670, and it was the duty of the Hudson's Bay Company to explore the land committed to it, and of failing to prosecute the search for the north-west passage to the Orient, which was the duty of the Hudson's Bay Company. The Hudson's Bay Company was in an effort to encourage the quest for the passage, and offered a reward of twenty thousand pounds for the first man to reach the Pacific. The Hudson's Bay Company was a full-blooded Indian, a man of singular energy, and of powerful influence among the Indians. He had been educated for nine years in England, but acquired little of the virtues of civilization. Like a Turkish despot, he had many wives, each locked away in separate apartments to which he carried the keys. He was vainly jealous, and inferior carried favor with him by deferring to his caprice. Indeed he is known to have murdered those who crossed his wishes. This then, was the man with whom Hearne was to undertake the tale of his first great trip into the rich lands of the interior.

Evolution

—Sir.—This writing is the result of a promise given, and arising from a talk with a friend on the subject, and which I have been unable to keep. It seems that, great as was "Diana of the Ephesus" of a past age, even greater is the god of evolution. The evolution of man is a fact in the heyday of Darwinism. Evolution could be regarded under one or two definitions, but now looking back over the evolution of man, we find that his lower half had to contend with, we have many definitions and classifications of evolution. Not many years ago, in fact, the frantic efforts of many a man to hold their own in the absence of all empirical evidence have followed him from the hearth of "Thelma," etc., etc., until today its many departments issue a medley of babel sounds, difficult at times for themselves to understand. Evolution is the most common definition of evolution (with no offence to Herbert Spencer's euphonious and long-winded phrase) is "Progress by natural change." presto business, how they get and of physical chemical processes, innumerable alterations, variations, adaptations, homogenous to the heterogeneous, which means, a change from the "how" to the "what" and a change to a continuous something else and stick to it."

Don't think, Mr. Editor, that this inverted comma phrase is mine. I could not lay claim to such an inspiration. We all know that a thing is not as it seems, and we have all believed it, neither false because we have never believed it. The vital point is to know upon what basis a certain process of reasoning is conducted, for it must be evident to all that the validity of any reasoning entirely depends, regardless of subject, upon the truth of whatever has been expressed or any assumption of proposition. The many will take their word for it, others who possess an equal modicum of common-sense, prefer to think and decide upon such matters for themselves. The great Pasteur once said: "Poverty will one day laugh at the foolishness of the modern naturalistic philosophy. And it is likely that time is here. Prof. Paulsen, of Berlin, says: 'Evolution is a disgrace to the philosophy of Germany.' Dr. Ehrhard, of the British Museum, says: 'Nine-tenths of the talk of evolutionists is sheer nonsense.' The Century Club states: 'The Darwinian type of evolution has been abandoned by all scientific men.' Prof. Fleischmann says: 'The theory of descent has not a single fact to confirm it in the realm of science. It is not the result of scientific research, but is purely the product of the imagination.' Sir G. Milner, Kensington University, says: 'I cannot call it anything but a purely hypothetical.' Lord Kelvin says: 'It is not in dead matter that men live and move, and have their being; but in a creative and directive Power, which science compels us to accept as an article of faith. In there anything as obeying the Divine Head to preach the good news of redemption accomplished voluntarily by His life's blood, should be discarded, and change his message to one that is pure, honest, and bestride the most Sacred Name in the mire of the same descent.' All evolution attempts to eliminate the supernatural and in so doing makes sport of the Bible and its sacred themes. It is evident that the teachings of evolution is wholly contrary to the teachings of the Scriptures and an antagonist to each other, for no man in his right senses and of a logical mind will accept the evolutionary theory of human origin and that which the Bible gives at the same time. So Christianity, or Theistic evolution is a misnomer, a contradiction. For if all things were evolved and evolved produced all things, it must have produced Christ. But the Christ of the Bible and hence of Christianity, declares "He came down from Heaven by a supernatural act, and Christ is true Christianity. I am not an evolutionist. I am a Christian."

—Sir.—I have just read Mr. Worsley's letter, and gather that he has no conception of what public shooting grounds will be, when we get them, even in British Columbia. I am sorry to see that he has been one of the many victims and that his house and windows suffered from some inexperienced lads who should never have been allowed to handle a gun. However, let me assure him that the establishment of public shooting grounds will solve his and every farmer's trouble.

I cannot go into details, but when I say that public shooting grounds will be a source of great benefit and more, an area for Victoria of 500,000 acres, and one for Nanaimo of something of that sort or less, Vancouver, an even larger area, according to the size of the city and its prospects.

Mr. Worsley will see that in the future he will not be likely to suffer from broken windows, or any other trouble, as far as shooting is concerned.

I may add that I have had numerous inquiries from public shooting grounds, and I hope in the very near future to write fully on this subject. Mr. Worsley may learn more should he care to do so. L. LEWIS CARNEY, Lt.-Col. Sidney, B.C., Oct. 30, 1924.

Church Union

—Sir.—As you are aware, the Provincial Parliament is the custodian of all property rights in the Province. The Union Party will shortly present a Bill to our legislature here which ignores the privilege granted by the Senate recently, of a vote by ballot, which appears to be the only fair mode of expressing the will of the people who have paid for and own the property.

We are confident that, in a great majority of cases, the people are overwhelmingly in favor of retaining their church and identity. It has been suggested that the only fair way to dispose of property, amounting to millions in this province, is to have a compulsory vote by ballot in every church concerned, and have the property handed over to the State. This is to say, should the vote be 60 per cent in favor of union and

Here Is Something Unique Nothing Like It on the Market

We have for sale, at Cadboro Bay, a site of about one acre, which possesses the requisites for gardens of all sorts. A high, dry building site, with a splendid view, and a moisture-seeping slope, already terraced and drained by nature.

Victoria is justly proud of her rockland gardens with their wealth of floral display, also of her noble homesites on the levels and lowlands, with the beauty of their shrubberies, trees, lawns and parks. During the long, dry Summer, the upkeep and watering of the flower beds, rock gardens and lawns is an expensive item. To establish a garden for the growing of ferns and moisture-loving plants would be prohibitive in cost, and has not, so far, been attempted in the city. This site gives an unsurpassed opportunity for anyone who can realize its possibilities for establishing something quite new in the way of ferneries, rockeries and growing moisture-loving plants. Clear running springs and natural slopes and terraces are already supplied by nature.

The property adjoins the Uplands and overlooks Cadboro Bay, with its yacht club, beach and Indian fosse. It is close to the golf links, and within twelve minutes of the car.

the pulpit of that system or religion to which he supposed to belong, to the brutal creed of the "survival of the fittest" of the jungle, which is the antithesis of all that is Christian, and of all that is noble in the human mind. Such churches lose their influence when such men are allowed to teach their heartless and destructive creed, for that divinely given of Repentance, Faith and Love. Surely no greater Nemesis could follow such an one, than to pass into the great beyond with the knowledge that instead of obeying the Divine Head to preach the good news of redemption accomplished voluntarily by His life's blood, should be discarded, and change his message to one that is pure, honest, and bestride the most Sacred Name in the mire of the same descent.

This is to say, should the vote be 60 per cent in favor of union and 40 per cent against, the most valuable property would be given to the union party and the next to the non-unionists, and so on along the line, and the balance (which would not be more than $1,000) could be paid in cash.

We are prepared to be reasonable and fair to the union party which is succeeding from us, and according to two of the most prominent legal authorities in Canada, Mr. Lafleur, of Montreal, and Mr. Chrysler, of Ottawa, have no right to the title in question. The immediate object of this letter is to appeal for funds to fight this matter. The Union party appear to have ample funds to flood the country with literature and propaganda, while we have to put our hands in our pockets for everything we do and we are now urgently in need of funds to carry on the campaign.

In the first place we have to retain a competent solicitor to properly prepare and present any amendments we may suggest to the Legislature, then we should have speakers sent to the country points to present our side of the question, which has never been presented in many parts.

I know that times are hard and money scarce, but I think that true Presbyterians can be depended on to do their duty and make a sacrifice in this, one of the greatest crises in our church's history.

Response to this "will have to be made promptly as the first meeting of the committee is in a few days, and subscriptions can be sent to me at 1333 St. Patrick Street, Oak Bay.

The Hebrideans
—Sir.—Surely if any one of the present ministry understands the fishing industry of British Columbia it should be the Hon. Mr. Pattullo, of Prince Rupert—the northern coast of the fisheries, on a Barkley Sound in the southern one. What is the rainfall of Prince Rupert? Practically the whole of our West Coast is the same, except for the past Summer months, when, as a matter of fact, the southern fishing season is over, for the Hebridean fishery is the best of the early in March. The climate is a gift for anyone, more especially women and children new to the country to live in a tent. And only one tent is offered for each family of Hebrideans. I hope they are large ones—girls and boys. Parents, children, household goods, cook house, boxes of tools, salmon gear, halibut lines. A tent. And if the men "can find immediate employment fishing" when and how can they provide homes for themselves?

Canneries are not increasing much nowadays and old hands must not be turned off, so the majority must fish independently, selling their fish to the highest bidder among the buyers. But what is the cost of a launch, herring nets, salmon gear, halibut lines? A sum of $600 will not buy a launch, it goes to the banks even outside Victoria. Could British Columbia not make it $1,000 at the very least?

In 1910 or so, the Port of Victoria came up to report on the desirability of an effort being made to start a fishermen's fleet at Ucluelet. After investigation only thirteen per cent of the fishermen proved to be of British and Canadian stock.

Indeed we want these Hebrideans, far more than paved highways, which encourage speeding. And yet how much is being planned to spend on extending our Island Highway this year?

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of November 4, 1874.)

The steamer "Isabel" sailing from Victoria, about dark, last evening with 150 passengers, and $100,000 in gold dust from Canada. The passengers left the California at Nanaimo. About 80 minutes will come down by the Mendocino, and 80 minutes by Portland in the California, which sailed yesterday afternoon from Nanaimo. The fare on the Isabel was $100. The steamer also brought 80 tons of freight.

Highway Robbery—On Monday afternoon at 1:30, a Chinaman in the employ of a Chinaman, was being robbed of $15 by two men in naval uniforms. There is some chance of the thieves being caught, as there were European witnesses.

Crash—The reason has come when it behoves the City Fathers to look after the street crossings. It would especially remind them to look after the crossings at the street, some of these having completely disappeared.

The real whole wheat cracker—not made of coarse, uncooked flour, but made of the whole wheat grain, cooked in steam, drawn into filmy shreds and baked in electric ovens. It is more easily digested than ordinary crackers and contains more real, body-building nutriment. The crisp, tasty shreds of flavory, baked whole wheat encourage thorough chewing, and that means healthy gums, sound teeth and good digestion. Delicious with butter or soft cheese. Tastes better when toasted in the oven.

Hallowe'en Party

One of the many house parties and dances held on Friday evening to commemorate the feast of All Saints was at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tippet, Blackwood Street. The guests of honor being Mrs. H. C. Cook, of Lake Hill. The entire house was artistically decorated with the customary black cats, witches, etc., used on this particular festival of the year, and the large living and dining-rooms were thrown open for the use of the many guests. The bright gowns of several of the ladies created a riot of color, at the same time harmonizing with the orange and black of the house decoration. The evening was spent in dancing and various games, followed by an excellent buffet supper, and it was in "the wee sma' hours" the guests departed to their various homes. The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. Gray and their daughters, Elvira and Eleanor; Mr. and Mrs. E. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Drybrough, Mr. and Mrs. Sid Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cummins, Mrs. F. C. Cook, E. Vanstone, M. Baker, Muriel and Phyllis Cox, Messrs. Frank Partington and L. Gray.

HALLOWE'EN MASQUERADE

The annual Hallowe'en masquerade dance of the Hustlers and Live Wires took place on Saturday evening at the home of Miss Lenore Miles. The house was decorated to suit the occasion. A dim and mystic light was spread over the room, with the usual cats and witches perched in the most conspicuous places.

The costumes of the guests exceeded all expectations. The one for the best dressed girl was won by Miss Helen Robinson and Mr. Leslie Jeeves was presented with the boy's prize.

About twenty couples danced to the strains of a five-piece orchestra, which kindly consented to play for the occasion.

Supper was served about 11 o'clock and dancing was continued after supper until 12, when the guests reluctantly departed. The social committee is to be congratulated on its successful managing of the affair.

COCKED FEATHERS TAKE PLACE BOAS HELD LAST YEAR

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Fashion has virtually said good-bye to black and brilliant browns and reds, greens and blues being the favorite colors for the Paris Winter season. The brighter shades made into gowns usually trimmed with fur, are much in evidence. Feathers also have become a decided feature of women's wear and cocked feathers have been replaced into service of fashion to replace the ostrich boas of last winter.

Energy for Men in Fry's

A DAILY cup of FRY'S Cocoa will do wonders in giving that energy of body and clearness of mind, you need for a good day's work.
To read the analysis of FRY'S Cocoa is readily to believe the claims of Dr. Andrew Wilson, F.R.S.E., Dr. Robt. Hutchison and many other scientists, that it is the nearest thing to "liquid energy" that exists in the world to-day. Food for every department of the human body, and Nature's kindest stimulant for heart and nerve—theobromine—is found in FRY'S. Tea and coffee are mere flavours but FRY'S is a complete food.
FRY'S has that delicate "chocolaty" flavour that comes only from a blend of the choicest cocoa beans and the experience of 200 years.

Remember: "Nothing will do but FRY'S."

Candlelight A Thrilling Serial

BY RUBY AYRES

The story thus far: Minnie and William—William the Third, she adoringly calls him—met at the sea-side on a holiday. She is an undeniably plain, awkward little girl of nine, and he is a freckled, earnest boy of twelve years under a girlish pair of eyes. But they strike up a friendship, marked by understanding on the boy's part, limit gratefulness on the girl's. Minnie occasionally sees him, and William occasionally sees her. Then Rose Flint, Minnie's friend, meets William. William realizes that he loves Minnie, but she is none of the things that he has been brought up to think the wife should be. Peter Latham meets Minnie and falls in love with her. Though she realizes that she loves William, Minnie, feeling that he will never love her, accepts Peter. Two days before her wedding William comes to see her.

CHAPTER XIV.

"Excuse me, William again." The breakfast-room carpet was up, and all pictures and ornaments gone. William looked around him with resentful eyes; he felt a personal sense of outrage at the ruthless stripping of this house which he had known for so many years.

Minnie turned to the door. "Father is out, and we have no maid. If you don't mind waiting I'll go and make some tea."

William moved between her and the door. "I don't want any tea. I want to tell you something."

There was a determined look in his eyes and a different tone in his voice that touched Minnie with a strange fear, although she did not understand what it was that she feared, so that she moved back a step from him, her hands outstretched to ward him off, as she said breathlessly:

"Oh, please! I want to tell you something first. I want to tell you—"

"I'm engaged—I'm going to be married the day after tomorrow."

She dared not look at him as she spoke or she would have seen in his eyes the betrayal which she dreaded he would read in hers; but during the seconds that raced away William's voice was very much the same as usual when he spoke.

"It's very sudden, isn't it? Why didn't you tell me when I was here a month ago?"

"Because there wasn't anything to tell."

"You mean—? Oh, but surely things can't have been arranged in such a short time?"

"They were," said Minnie. "I had never seen Peter when you were here a month ago."

And then a silence fell, which neither of them seemed capable of breaking. The other murmured word about tea Minnie slipped past him and went out into the kitchen.

She put the kettle on the gas and stood idly watching it. She felt curiously numb and detached, as if she were looking on at the emotions of someone else.

Presently she heard William's step in the empty hall and a moment later he came into the kitchen behind her.

"Does the kettle boil?"

"Not yet."

She did not look round, and William sat down on the end of the kitchen table and began to fill his pipe. After a moment:

"Peter—what?" he asked abruptly. "Latham, Peter Latham?"

"What is he?"

"A stock broker, I think."

"How old?"

"Twenty-eight."

"And you are to be married the day after tomorrow?"

"Yes."

"Well, I wish you every happiness, Minnie."

Would the kettle never boil? She tried to turn the gas higher and in her agitation nearly turned it out, and when the fine train of steam and a violent rumbling sound announced that the water boiled at last, her hand shook so as she tried to fill the teapot that she splashed it all over her wrist and fingers.

"Oh!" She put the kettle down hurriedly with a cry of pain, and William jumped off the table and came quickly to her.

"What's the matter? Have you scalded yourself?"

"Only a little—it's nothing." She tried to prevent him from taking her hand, but it was useless and he held it fast with gentle fingers.

And she went on, finding speech less difficult than she had found it before. "We've got a little house at Chiswick—only a tiny one, of course! But it will be very nice, I think. Father is going to live with me and you must ask me to come and see you," William asked.

She made no reply to that; perhaps she felt that he had no more desire to come than she had to leave him.

They finished the tea, and William packed the things on a tray and carried them out into the scullery.

"I'll wash them up, if you like," he volunteered, but Minnie would not hear of it. So they went back into the morning-room, and William walked over to the window and stared out at the setting sun, and the crooked "To be sold" board. He knew that a large part of his life would end with the selling of this house and with Minnie's marriage, and yet he felt himself powerless to stem the tide which had carried them on so swiftly during the past month.

He turned round and looked at Minnie as she stood by the table, absently turning the pages of a magazine, and his eyes took in every detail of her thin, badly-dressed figure and pale face. He had never thought her so lovely, and yet now that he was to lose her forever he could see beauty in every line of her face and unformed limbs. What a fool he was! "Friday night" he had always thought himself so wise.

Tomorrow—New Life.

Before, At and After the Ball

By Kilbee Gordon

Before—Just a little, the average attendant at a monster ball, a pageant of beauty, amidst a world of ghosts and goblins, witches and black cats, ending in the sweet strains of two super-orchestras, now little they know, or understand, of the immense expenditure of imagination, thought and labor necessary to produce the results of "Friday night" (and Saturday morning's) Halloween frolic and altogether perfect ball given by the Press Club of Victoria at the Empress Hotel.

There were two orchestras pouring out a mass of dance impelling and dance compelling melody, and the finest hotel in Victoria was being opened by the C. P. R. to encourage everyone Halloweening to have a good time.

The fact is, the Victoria Press Club Ball was a huge success, and only because the committee of the two papers combined and the members worked hard on the joint committee responsible and carried off the "Ball of the Season." And now's the time to say what they said today. "But wait! The next Valentine's Day's ball will knock this last one out of the socket. It will be a record breaker and a heart breaker, for that is the night of the Knight of Hearts. Great credit for Friday night's success is due to the following: Mr. T. H. Wilson of the Times, president of the Press Club, who appeared to be having a good time. Mr. J. E. Watson, who was in charge of the whole show and even with such a burden of responsibility was smiling on everyone. Magificent was the work of the orchestra, the leader of the band and brought in the following: Mrs. H. P. Hodges, (chairman); Miss E. Bruce, Mrs. Brenten, Mr. Bruce Hutchinson, Mr. Harold McDonald.

That there was no trouble re tickets to the ball or delay in admission to the dining-room is due to the excellent endeavor of the ticket committee, who were: Mr. P. C. Rawling, (chairman); Mr. Tom Merriman, Mr. H. S. Graves, Mr. Jerry King, Mr. J. E. Watson. The truly stunning lighting effects were only possible because Mr. Ken Drury was in charge, while Mr. Bruce Hutchinson, the artist, embellished the lovely lovely ball with a mixture of bewitching witch and such a number of cat-like cats, one could not tell which was which. (How the "Old Un" must have cowered at the sight of so many felines).

Mr. Tom Merriman acted as an indefatigable secretary, being everywhere at the same time. The Empress Hotel management, under Mr. Herbert Wilson, produced a most excellent supper and with the music of card and orchestra in the big room, and Mr. Hunt's orchestra in the writing room, there was ample room and opportunity for those enjoying the lovely ball to get into the out which there is not much fun in anything.

It was a joy to see the "Old Timers" and "Colonials" intermingled, impossible to tell them apart. One could not distinguish an Old Timer from a Colonial—and vice versa, the latter having the times of their young un-sophisticated lives, the former color being the whole community. A happy League of Newby Nations—up-to-date. Amongst so many, one noticed a little lady Colonial in a sweet costume of 1880, trying to look 60 and only succeeding in looking eighteen.

Also, an Old Timer doing the light fantastic in a feline (advertisement department) costume, and thirty monster cats, from every known cat-producing country catalogued, who were playing (1) and dancing themselves and entertaining others.

A former captain of our premier cricket club, who when stepped on by a passing vehicle, never mind my foot, I've hurt my leg before.

A former chief of seventeen years ago who used to find fault with a tender, made a "slip, now made rude pointed remarks as to the wanderer's figure; for hours the nine hundred danced for the nine hundred. The orchestra played for the nine hundred and danced, and at the hour of 4 a.m. the nine hundred slept—for hours.

After the Ball

It's a long, long way to where I live and not to where I live, other dances, other crowds, other costumes, were good company home-ward bound on foot. Summed up one thought ran as follows:

"There never was such a ball—The Press Club Ball! There never were such costumes! There never was such an aggregation of beauty—and intellect—and there never was such a tired feeling—on the way home. But there was such a delightful mental exhilaration, the effect of meeting so many old friends that it was unanimously decided in one's mind that the committee responsible for the Press Club fancy dress ball, Halloween, deserve all the praise possible and a recommendation to do it again, soon!"

BOSWORTH WAS ONCE REAL PRIZE FIGHTER

Famous Actor in "Sundown" Had Varied Life Before Entering Moving Pictures

A prize fighter, truck driver, cow puncher, sailor, landscape painter! Just a few of the vocations and avocations of Hobart Bosworth, who plays one of the principal characters in "Sundown," the spectacular first National epic of the cattle country, now being shown at the Capitol Theatre.

Born in Marietta, Ohio, a descendant of Miles Standish and of John and Priscilla Alden on his father's side, and of old Dutch settlers of Manhattan on his mother's, the famous motion picture star can look back on a life which has never been monotonous for want of excitement.

At twelve he ran away to sea and for three years he sailed the "Seven Seas" as cabin boy, a merchant sailing ship. Then he went on a whaling expedition into the Arctic. Stranded in San Francisco he earned his living by boxing and wrestling. Later he was putting bronchos on a Western ranch.

Then came the call of the stage. At the age of twenty he was interpreting Shakespeare—he travelled through Mexico with Hermann, the magician—was a member of Augustin Daly Stock Company in New York and in 1903 he entered the motion picture field as actor, scenarist and director.

TALE OF BORDER IS A GRIPPING FILM

One of Most Thrilling of Western Action Pictures Now Being Shown at the Dominion

"The Border Legion," a Paramount production of Zane Grey's immensely popular novel with Antonio Moreno and Helene Chadwick in the principal roles, is the feature at the Dominion Theatre all this week. The story was adapted to the screen by George Hull. William Howard directed the production, his first for Paramount.

The fact is, the second of Paramount's widely-advertised "Famous 40" but this author to reach the screen. The other was a natural picture, "Wanderer," which was the Waterloo of the Dominion some time ago.

By taking "Wanderer" as a standard of comparison, one would think that the last of the "Famous 40" would be a record breaker and a heart breaker, for that is the night of the Knight of Hearts. Great credit for Friday night's success is due to the following: Mr. T. H. Wilson of the Times, president of the Press Club, who appeared to be having a good time. Mr. J. E. ORPHANS ARE GIVEN HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Miss Mary Spencer was instrumental in providing one of the happiest Halloween's children at the B. C. Protestant Orphanage had ever experienced. Great credit is due to the color scheme for the decorations at the home. Jack-o'-lanterns, hollowed from pumpkins by the boys, decorated the front door with darkness felt, and visitors arriving after supper were greeted by the candle-lit faces of the lanterns.

Inside, the room was festooned with witches, black cats, orange streamers and brilliant flowers. The supper tables, with dainties of all kinds, were adorned with flowers and Halloween favors. The children sat down and put on their brilliant paper caps, the dining-room presented a happy scene.

An illustrated lecture on the Indians of the Province was given by Rev. Tait, who has spent many years in British Columbia doing excellent work among the Indians. Mr. Bryant assisted Mr. Tait by operating the lantern, and the boys and girls heartily enjoyed the talk.

Until bedtime, which arrived all too soon for the kiddies, games of every description were played. Miss Spencer generously provided table tennis, indoor golf, picture puzzles and many other fascinating amusements for boys and girls of all ages. Ice cream was served during the evening, and it is doubtful if a happy party could have been found anywhere in Victoria.

Mrs. Hancock, in an appropriate little speech, thanked Miss Spencer on behalf of the staff and the ladies' committee, and also tendered to Rev. Tait and Mr. Bryant a vote of thanks for their part of the entertainment. The children gave three cheers for Miss Spencer and Rev. Tait and voted the evening one of the best they had ever had.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY PROVES ATTRACTIVE

A Halloween party with a further objective than the mere celebration of this popular anniversary was the one given by four ladies of Oak Bay last Friday evening in the schoolroom of St. Columba Church. Some time ago each member of the Ladies' Aid Society of that church was requested to take one dollar as talent money and to multiply it as her talents might justify. While some members employed their talents individually to good purpose, three four ladies, Mrs. S. V. Howers, Mrs. W. T. Gelling, Mrs. E. Albutt and Mrs. Charles Hudson, wisely decided to pool their capital and talents and make them serve a threefold purpose, namely, to raise a considerable sum for the society, to give their friends an opportunity to spend a delightful evening, and to demonstrate their own ability as hostesses. Tiny aprons were sent to all those known to be interested in the welfare of St. Columba Church, together with an invitation to this party, the apron to constitute the card of admission and the apron pocket to contain one penny for each inch of the guest's waist measurement.

Scidom has such a large and appreciative audience gathered in the schoolroom of St. Columba Church. The programme, not previously announced, was one of constant and agreeable surprise. There was a Punch and Judy show by Mr. Farmer and his son; piano solos by Mrs. Campbell, Miss Kathryn Albutt and Miss Alleen Carruthers; a black face skit by Stanley Bowers and Arthur Scott; a singing contest by four quartettes of young ladies, led by Mr. Gelling; Mrs. Bowers, Mr. Burnell and Mr. Mallett; a suit-making contest by ten young girls, male guests serving as models; a recitation by Miss Grace Adams; apple bobbing and other games. After bountiful refreshments had been served, the National Anthem was sung, and all guests departed with expressions of appreciation of a most delightful evening.

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER DUNCAN CONVENTION

Mr. George I. He found that the various centres on the Island were very ready to endorse the scheme that was in hand. In Ladysmith a Board of Trade had been organized and started off very enthusiastically over the prospects. It was sending a full delegation to the meeting that is to be held in Duncan.

Walter Johnson Picks Stars of the Majors

King of All the Pitchers Selects All-Star Team From Men He Has Played With and Against in Big League Ball During Eighteen Years' Experience—Opines That Truly Great Stars of Game Belong to Past

WALTER JOHNSON has picked his all-star major league team from the players he has known in his eighteen years' experience. Here it is: Outfielders, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Babe Ruth; first base, Hal Chase; second base, Napoleon Lajoie; third base, Jimmy Collins; shortstop, Tuck Turner; catcher, Charley Street; pitcher, "Rube" Waddell.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—You an all-star major league team covering the eighteen years that I have been in the American League?" repeated Walter Johnson, the king of all pitchers, "well, sir, that's a task. Do you know—and he forgot for the moment the ham and eggs before him—I've thought about doing this for some time, but always something has happened to interfere."

"I don't know of a man better qualified than you are," spoke up Joe Eagle, Washington scout. "You've pitched to all of the players, great and small, and your knowledge of their strong and weak points gives you an insight that none of us ever got."

"Search the Past." "In going over the players in my own mind," said Johnson, "it strikes me that the truly great stars belong to the past. If the best players were in the game today, picking an all-star team would be comparatively easy, but you've got to dig into the past to name most of them."

"Let's start with the first baseman," suggested Eagle. "That is going to be easy," said Johnson. "I'd name Hal Chase. Chase's behavior was not what it should be, but in ability I think he was the greatest first baseman that ever lived."

"The old-timers tell me that Anson and Comiskey were great men, and the old National League fellows tell me that Fred Tenney was a wonderful first baseman, but with all due credit to them, I don't think Chase ever had an equal."

"How about second base?" Johnson was asked. "Eddie Collins is one of the best second basemen I ever saw," Johnson continued, "but I don't see how any all-star American League team would be complete without Napoleon Lajoie at second."

"Lajoie was a wonderful hitter, one of the hardest I ever tried to fool, graceful, pretty to look at and with a perfect eye. As a fielder, he was all form and poise and made the hardest plays look easy. Lajoie made such easy work of his job that he never received half the credit that was due him."

"Shortstop, I'm afraid, is going to stump you," volunteered Eagle. "I've seen some pretty good shortstops," said Johnson, "but the best, to my mind, was Tuck Turner, of Cleveland. I always did like the play of Bobby Wallace and I thought he was a wonderful shortstop, but Turner always took my eye. Turner could go just as far to his right as he could to his left. Feckinpaugh, McBride, Wagner, Gerber and Scott were classy shortstops, but Turner is my choice."

"Third base," said Johnson, after a minute's pause, "belongs to Jimmy Collins, the old Boston third baseman. In the little that I saw of Collins, he made an impression that will always remain. Collins was a graceful fielder and one of the best men on slow hit balls that I ever saw; also, he was a good hitter."

"It's going to be difficult to pick your outfielders according to position," Johnson was reminded. "I'm not going to attempt that," he explained. "In picking three outfielders, I don't want to do any injustice to any of the good outfielders I have seen, but the three that stick out in my mind are Ty Cobb, of Detroit; Tris Speaker, of Cleveland, and Babe Ruth, of New York. When you consider all departments of play, these three are in a class by themselves. Joe Jackson was a great outfielder, but I've given Cobb, Speaker and Ruth the preference."

"What catcher would you name?" Johnson was asked.

"Charley Street," he answered after a little hesitation. "In two of the years that he caught me, I think he was the best catcher I ever looked at. Street was a wonderful receiver. He was smart, and he could throw like a rifle. I never worried about base runners taking a lead when Street was catching me. Bill Garrison, of Boston, was another wonderful catcher who could do all things well, but for the two years that I speak of, Street was without an equal."

"Greatest Pitcher." "George 'Rube' Waddell was the greatest pitcher I ever looked at. 'Rube' was eccentric and all that, but in sheer natural ability he never had an equal."

Johnson says that Addie Joss, Chief Bender, Eddie Plank, Jack Chesbro, Joe Wood, Jack Combs and Ed Walsh were wonderful pitchers, "but Waddell stood out like a beacon light."

WILSON CUP FOOTBALL
Shawnigan Boys Win Two Games From St. Michael's. Each by Score of One to Nothing.

On Saturday, St. Michael's School visited Shawnigan with two teams to play Mr. Lonsdale's boys. In the morning the junior team (under 12) met and gave a very good exhibition of football. A keen game ended in a win for the home team by 1-0. For the visitors Lawson, in goal, saved several good shots.

After lunch at the school the two cup teams met and some really first-class football was witnessed. The Shawnigan boys were bigger than the visitors, noticeably in the forward line, and their captain, Kioff, enabled them to win the first game of the series by 1-0, the goal being scored luckily by Holton in the last ten minutes. This score might have been considerably more had it not been for the admirable defence put up by R. Robertson, M. Gray, Norrie and Ricardo, who all played a sterling game, ably assisted by Robinson in goal.

Both schools are looking forward to their next encounter at Victoria on December 8.

Brentwood College Rugged Breaks Thigh

The third accident, which was reported as the rugby games Saturday, happened to Larry Henderson, one of the star three-quarter players of the Intermediate Brentwood College team. Toward the end of the match Henderson, by some unknown cause, had the misfortune to break his thigh. Owing to the excitement of the game during the final few minutes, very few people saw the accident, and the announcement which was made last night was a distinct shock to rugby followers. Henderson was taken to the Jubilee Hospital by Dr. Deaton, Holmes, who was watching the game, and up to late last night was reported to be progressing favorably.

ART ROSS GATHERS GOOD BOSTON TEAM

Three Coast Players Included in the Hockey Line-Up of New Club Joining Up With N.H.L.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—Art Ross, who is to manage the Boston club in the National Hockey League, has, according to reports coming from Hamilton, the nucleus of a good team for this season. Ross, it is reported, has signed four of the Hamilton Tigers' amateur team which made such a good showing in the senior series of the O.H.A. last winter.

The four players reported to have signed are Carson Cooper, who was leading scorer for the O.H.A. for several seasons; Mitchell, a wing player; Redding, a defence man, and Scharr, a centre player.

It was stated that Ross has already in his possession the signed contract of Cooper, notwithstanding a report that Cooper belonged to the Saskatoon club.

Dunc Munro, who will be with the Montreal team in the N.H.L., was a visitor here yesterday. He is well pleased with the terms given him by the Montreal club, and stated that he had no regrets for turning professional.

The following is the complete list of players signed by Ross: Fowler, goalkeeper, from Victoria; Harris, Seattle; Skinner, Vancouver; Mitchell, Scharr and Cooper, Hamilton; and Herbert, of Collingwood.

LADYSMITH ELEVEN DEFEATS DAVENPORTS
Win League Soccer Match by Five to Two, Scoring Four Times in First Twenty Minutes.

NANAIMO, Nov. 2.—Ladysmith defeated the local Davenport, five to two, in a league game played here on Saturday afternoon before a fair crowd. The visitors scored four goals in the first twenty minutes of play, their first one coming two minutes after the opening whistle, when Davis (Chapman) scored.

Seven minutes later, Davis scored again on a cross from Appleby. The match was then a one-sided affair, the Davenport's backs playing well up-field, and rushed the ball ahead of him and into the net for his third goal. The fourth for Ladysmith within twenty minutes. Shortly after, the ball was again netted by Ladysmith, but the player was off-side, and the goal nullified.

Thirty minutes from the start, Thompson, for the Davenport, scored their first goal of the game, and almost on the minute the defence broke following a concerted rush of his forwards, scored the Davenport's second, making the tally at half-time, 4-2.

In the second period, the Davenport played a much better game, and actual play was more in Ladysmith territory than the locals, but the defence of the visitors was too strong, and their forwards, breaking away, gave Strang a chance, and he scored the last and fifth for Ladysmith after eighteen minutes of play.

Juniors Draw
The junior soccer game was played Saturday afternoon between the Forsters and Port Place, and resulted in a 1-1 draw. About two hundred spectators attended, and the game was one of the best played in the junior division for some time.

Captain Best, the owner, has been in Toronto for some time and has therefore been in a position to judge of the capabilities of local horses. As a result he sent instructions for Glen Mona to be sent east, as he considered she was more than good enough to hold her own there. It is a long time since a horse was shipped to Toronto to compete in the show there, if ever before, and it is gratifying to know that a local owner is so public-spirited. Glen Mona and her sporting owner are wished the best of luck.

PROTEST UPHOLD BY SOCCER BOARD

VETERANS-WARDS GAME MUST BE REPLAYED

St. Andrew's Conting to Play "Rep" Team on Thanksgiving Day—Local Eleven Selected

At the weekly meeting of the Lower Island Football Association, the protest of the Veterans of their game against the local "rep" team should have been upheld, and the game will have to be replayed at a later date. The grounds for upholding the protest were that the referee, after calling the game, had no authority to restart play.

The meeting of the Veterans, was suspended for one week for leaving the field of play.

Only one senior soccer match is scheduled for next Saturday. Equilibrium playing the United Services at the Royal Athletic Park at 2:45. McMillan will referee.

On Thanksgiving Day, November 10, St. Andrew's will be manager of the coming over to play a Victoria representative team. St. Andrew's were the Mainland champions last year, and Provincial finalists. The match against the local "rep" team should produce some very good football and make a fine feature for the day.

The following will play for Victoria: Chapman (Goalkeeper); Bell (Wards) and Copas (West); Tupman (Teamsters), Owens (Veterans) and Mesher (Equilibrium); Cummings (United Services); Phillips (S.O.E.); T. Ward (Equilibrium); Mulr (West); and Clarkson (Veterans). Reserves, Taylor (Wards), Roe (Veterans) and Connorton (S.O.E.).

Joe Bloom will be manager for the team and Mr. Hook will be trainer. The match will start at 2:30 p.m., with Stokes the referee, and Alcock the linesman. There will be no advance in the usual price of admission.

Any of the selected team who are unable to play are asked to notify Mr. Bloom before Thursday of this week. Wednesday games are: Tillicums vs. Hudson's Bays at Royal Athletic Park (referee, Hewetson), and United Services vs. Teamsters, at Work Point (referee, Alcock).

Sportive Punches

By the "Qld 'Un"

Over in England since the defeat once more of the Old Country players in the international team golf match for the WALKER CUP they have been trying to learn just what is the reason for the Americans' successive victories.

They're not trying to find "allies," or anything like that, understand. Of course when members of the team were asked by American interviewers why they lost, they naturally were astonished and replied that "it was because the other fellows played better, of course."

That in the answer which a British sportsman would be expected to give by those who know the breed, but all the same there is nothing unsporting in trying to analyze the play and find out the weak spots in the defeated side's armor.

It seems to be generally agreed by the English golf writers that the Americans win by superior putting. The Old Countrymen drive as long, or longer, and as straight; they play an equally good game through the green, or better, but when it comes to persuading a comparatively small ball into a comparatively large hole the Yankee does it with just a little more certainty.

And this is explained as being due to the climatic conditions to a certain extent.

In America turf greens have to be made and sowing, mowing and watering are carried out in such wise by the makers and keepers of greens that there is a very great similarity in the putting surfaces on which the American golfer plays throughout the country.

The touch which serves him well in CHICAGO serves him equally well in NEW YORK. The architects work on the assumption that, once the golfer reaches the green, everything should be made as smooth and easy as possible for him.

As one expert critic puts it: "Notoriously putting greens in the States are deliberately made more homogeneous in contour and texture than those on which British golfers spend a good deal of their time."

The fact that an American, domiciled by choice or necessity in Europe, loses his putting sooner than his accent is significant.

Wonder how those gentlemen who are so exercised in mind over the necessity of the opposite of killing off such dangerous animals as common cats and coons would get along if they lived in BURMA.

According to statistics taken from the Government Gazette during the years 1919-22 the number of people reported killed in Burma by snakes was 7,392, by elephants 67, by tigers 341, by leopards 56, by bears 18, and by "other animals" 67.

And the wild animals destroyed were: Snakes 71,830, elephants 178, tigers 3,760, leopards 12,579, bears 8,386, and "other animals" 2,122.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE TO BE ORGANIZED

Meeting Called for Thursday Night to Discuss Project—Three Divisions May Be Formed

A meeting of all clubs interested in the formation of either a Commercial or City Basketball League, or both, are asked to attend a meeting which is called for Thursday night, at 8 o'clock, in Room K at the Y.M.C.A.

Several clubs have already shown considerable interest in such a project, and it is anticipated that one or two more will send two representatives with ideas and suggestions as to the formation of such a league or leagues. It is also requested that names be submitted at this meeting of those eligible to take office in the said leagues so that as little time as possible will be lost in getting things under way.

It is a few years since a city league was run in this city, but it is felt that there is no reason why such a league should not take premier position in basketball again as far as this city is concerned.

It is thought that should there be sufficient entries to warrant it, that an A, B, and probably C division may be inaugurated so as to handle all entries and grade them in their proper divisions to produce the best games for both the players and spectators combined.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—In the London professional soccer club charity fund game between Clapton Orient and Tottenham Hotspurs, at the end of the ninety minutes' period the score was tied, 1-1. BRANDON AMATEUR GOES TO PATRICK

BILLY HOLMES MAY NOT PLAY WITH MAROONS

Understood That He and Jim Riley Will Be Turned Over to Boston or Montreal

CALGARY, Nov. 3.—President Fred Johnston, of the Calgary Tigers, announced the sale of "Billy" Holmes, versatile Brandon amateur, to Frank Patrick, owner of the Vancouver Maroons. This deal has been hanging fire for some time, but was definitely closed Monday afternoon. Holmes goes to Patrick outright.

The Brandon star was signed by Lloyd Turner a year ago, and, after training with the Tigers and taking the first swing around the Coast circuit, requested that he be allowed to remain with the Wheat City team another winter, and this was granted.

The Tiger management announces that negotiations are still pending for the purchase of Jim Riley, formerly of the Seattle Mets, although there is a but little hope of getting him as it is understood that both Holmes and Riley are to be turned over to either the new Montreal club or Boston, of the N.H.L.

Skinner and Harris Are Sold to Boston

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3.—Alf Skinner, with the Vancouver hockey team of the Pacific Coast League since 1919, and Fred "Smoky" Harris, who has figured on Coast League team lineups since 1911, have been sold outright to Boston, where they will play for Art Ross. It was announced here this morning.

WILL SEEK CHANGE IN POLL TAX ACT

City Council Would Only Exempt Pensioners Amongst the Returned Soldiers

The city council last night decided to seek power to impose the poll tax on returned soldiers who, though discharged from the forces as medically unfit or temporarily invalided, are yet not in receipt of pensions.

Instructions were given City Solicitor Pringle to press for an amendment to the Poll Tax Act which would effect the desired change.

Alluding to the clause in the act which exempts returned soldiers, Mr. Pringle told the council the tax collector had pointed out to him that this provision gives exemption to a great many returned soldiers who came back from the war certified medically unfit or temporarily invalided; but that their injuries or disabilities were not such as to enable them to secure a pension. It had been suggested that many of those men were now in the best of health and possibly better able to pay the poll tax than many other returned men who were not so invalided.

"The suggestion was accordingly made," Mr. Pringle said, "that this exemption clause should apply only to those returned soldiers being in receipt of pension; and in this connection I may say that as a result of conversations with and information obtained from some returned soldiers the proposed amendment appears to meet with approval."

In essence the proposed amendment would limit the exemptions from the poll tax to pensioners as far as returned soldiers are concerned.

SLAUGHTER HOUSE TO BE INSPECTED

PROVINCIAL HEALTH OFFICER PROMISES ACTION

Complains Description of Slaughter House Published Before He Was Notified of Case

In a letter to the Council last night, Dr. H. E. Young, Provincial Health Officer, promised immediate inspection of the rural slaughter-house west of Victoria, which was alleged before last week's meeting of the Council to have broken all sanitary regulations, and to have been supplying the city for years with possibly contaminated meat.

Dr. Young informed the Council that the Provincial Chief Sanitary Inspector would inspect the property in company with a representative of the Provincial Board of Health.

He complained that his attention had not been drawn to the matter by the civic officials before publication of the details in the press. Statements made about the slaughter-house, he declared, were entirely unwarranted.

The owner had applied to the Provincial Board of Health for instruction in regard to the construction of the premises. Such had been given him, and the terms of the Act fully explained.

Subsequently, a complaint had been made as to the grounds around the slaughter-house, and an inspection had been immediately made. Later, an inspection was made to discover as to whether the instruction given had been complied with, and at the time of this inspection and a subsequent one, there had been no evidence of neglect.

The Council decided to table the communication for one week.

City Solicitor Pringle gave it as his opinion that the Council had full power to prohibit the introduction into the city and the sale of any meat from the slaughter-house in question. The Council needs, he said, consider itself with the identification of the meat sold, but should leave that to the Medical Health Department.

The Cumberland killing, it is said, resulted from hidden but none the less bitter conflict between two gambling factions. The story goes that a brother of the murdered man and other members of the faction of which he had been the head, charged David Lew with some complicity in the killing. Lew was arrested in the East and dismissed. Later he brought suit against his persecutors for maliciously causing his arrest and was awarded $10,000 damages. The faction appealed the judgment and won. David Lew was not satisfied and took the case into the Supreme Court of Canada. The trial of the appeal was being heard in the East when David Lew was killed, and because of his death the case was brought to a sudden end as the plaintiff had ceased to exist.

It is understood that the Vancouver detective working on the case has obtained sufficient evidence to convince him that the man arrested yesterday is either the brother of the man with the similar name who was killed in Cumberland two years ago, or a man closely connected with the faction which caused David Lew's arrest. Two motives are said to be behind the slaying of Lew last September. One is revenge on the supposition that he had a hand in the killing of the Chinaman Sang in Cumberland. The other is gain—if Lew had won his appeal in the Supreme Court, the faction against which the damage action was aimed would have had to pay $10,000, and probably costs in addition.

Jong Sang was non-committal when he was charged with the killing of David Lew yesterday. "No savvy," was his answer to all questions. He is said to hail from some point up Island.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3.—Chong Sing, 50, Chinese laborer, arrived tonight from Victoria in custody of Detective John Kieck, and will be held for investigation in connection with the shooting on September 24, in Vancouver's Chinatown, of David Lew.

Chong Sing was detained through the wild of Chief of Police John Fry of Victoria. It is stated that he disappeared from his hotel on Pender Street on the night of the murder. His apartment was in Cumberland Island, from whence he moved to Victoria. He is said to have been found there well supplied with food.

MILLIONS LISTEN TO FINAL APPEAL OF TWO CANDIDATES

Republicans Sure of 250 Votes
The Republicans clinging tonight to a minimum prediction of three hundred and fifty electoral votes for Coolidge out of a total of five hundred and thirty-five, and declare that a figure probably would be surpassed in a landslide carrying with it a decisive Republican majority in the new Congress and sweeping Republican state tickets into office in all doubtful states.

Democratic headquarters repeated its expressions of confidence, but went no further than to issue a statement saying that all the border country from Maryland to Oklahoma was safe for Davis and that he would carry also a substantial block of states in the East and the West. Indiana, New Jersey and Oregon were mentioned as likely to go into the Democratic column.

Should neither Coolidge, Davis nor La Follette receive two hundred and sixty-six votes in the electoral college—a clear majority over all—the election of a President would go into the House of Representatives, under the constitution. In that event the House would vote in February, and only the three candidates who received the highest electoral vote would be eligible. But the choice would be made by the present almost evenly balanced House, and not by the new one that is to be chosen tomorrow.

British Views of Election
LONDON, Nov. 3.—Long dispatches from New York and Washington are furnishing British newspaper writers with latest probabilities in the United States Presidential elections and are being given front page prominence in all the London morning papers.

All dwell upon the uncertainties of the outlook, but most emphasize the indications in favor of Mr. Coolidge, although without making any predictions. There is little editorial comment, but attention is called to the possible importance of the result in relation to the European outlook.

The Westminster Gazette in this connection does not expect that any change in the United States international relations will follow "unless the improbable happens and La Follette is elected."

This paper adds: "If Mr. Davis is elected he would take a plebiscite on the League of Nations, but the result would almost inevitably be repudiation of the league."

The Daily Express editorially predicts the election of Mr. Coolidge.

Barney and Paymaster Cossette, of Esquimalt Naval Station.

The Absent Member

Following the appointment of Mr. J. A. Buckham, Columbia member, as speaker, and the reading of the King's Speech, a resolution of condolence to Mrs. McKie, widow of the late Mr. John McKie, Conservative member for the riding of Grand Forks-Greenwood, who was killed in an explosion on a railway train in Kettle Valley a few days ago, was moved by Hon. Dr. MacLean, Minister of Finance, a personal friend of the deceased. Dr. MacLean said that the late Mr. McKie had lived in the interior of British Columbia for many years and had become widely known and respected. He had known the late Conservative member exceedingly well, he said, and although they had been opposed politically, the fact had not militated against their friendship. "John McKie was a man and a citizen of the highest type, and in this country can ill-afford to lose him at this time," concluded the Minister.

In seconding the resolution, Mr. R. H. Pooley, Conservative leader, was visibly affected. He had just returned from Grand Forks where he had paid last respects to the memory of the departed member. His visit had made him appreciate the high regard in which the late Mr. McKie had been held in his riding. To Mrs. McKie and to her children, who had lost a devoted husband and a loving father, Mr. Pooley extended deepest sympathy.

Rev. Henry Knox Preaches First Time to Congregation—Formal Reception Tomorrow

Rev. Henry Knox on Sunday preached his first sermons in the city as newly appointed pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, the pulpit of which was made vacant several months ago by the universally regretted death of Rev. William Stevenson. His congregations were present both morning and evening, showing a cordial reception on the part of the church membership, and tomorrow evening the welcome will be extended in the form of a supper by the members, and a later reception, which is to be open to the public and to the representatives of sister churches of the city.

The tea was well attended, and a programme of piano-forte numbers by Mr. Hopkins and recitations by Miss Henley, of the Columbia School of Music staff, added to the enjoyment of the guests. Mr. Golby, in the absence of the president, read some communications from Overseas League headquarters, Vernon House, London, telling about recent additions to the club quarters necessitated by the pressure put on the existing accommodation.

ASK CONCESSIONS FOR WOOLEN MILL

COUNCIL PETITIONED BY RETURNED SOLDIERS

Plan Establishment of Woollen Industry in City—Would Raise Capital Here and Repay in Products

Two disabled returned soldiers last night asked the City Council for concessions to enable them to start a woollen industry in Victoria.

The concessions sought were the free use of a suitable building, tax exemption, and free water for a reasonable period while the projected business is being established.

The Council referred the request to the reverted lands and industrial committees for report.

The request was made in a letter to the Council from Mr. H. W. Hart, on behalf of the returned soldiers, Messrs. W. F. Godwin and E. B. McLean. The latter were unable, the letter said, to measure up to the exacting standards of physical fitness demanded by employers of labor. Both men, it continued, had had experience in the work and had exhibited specimens at the Willows Fair and at the Island Arts and Crafts Exhibition, receiving prizes for their exhibits.

Henry Wilson Chose Soundly and Well

The new North American Life "Endowment at 65" Policy was exactly the sort of insurance that Henry Wilson had been looking for.

"When I am sixty-five years old" he explained, "I shall receive $10,000 from the North American Life Assurance Company. That is about twice as much as I could handle with an ordinary Endowment Policy which would mature seventeen years earlier and therefore call for a larger premium. And the beauty of it is that when we are 65 years old, Betty and I will make much better use of $10,000 than a mere $5,000 at 48. Seventeen years would put a big hole in $5,000."

"In the meantime, I have protected my family adequately—which is after all the major consideration with me, as it is with every man."

"Paying premiums on this policy is somewhat similar to buying a stock which guarantees a 100% dividend."

Startling New Turn in Quadra Case Divulged

Federal Authorities Have List of Those to Whom Liquor Was Consigned—Assistant U. S. Attorney Says Postponement May Be of Benefit to Crew and Owners of Quadra as Well as Government—San Francisco Shaken by Big Liquor Exposure

A STARTLING new discovery by the United States Federal authorities gives a new turn in interest in the seizure of the Victoria liquor carrier Quadra and her $1,000,000 cargo of Paroline Islands recently by the United States customs cutter Shawnee.

The new turn in events is that a list of persons to whom the Quadra's huge liquor cargo was consigned is in the hands of Federal authorities. It is also alleged that they know who shipped the cargo are. This might involve Victoria and Vancouver liquor exporters in the case.

Although its term has expired officially the Grand Jury, it was learned, won a continued lease on life when United States Attorney Carr presented to Federal Judge the plea: "There are three cases yet pending before this jury" and asked an order continuing its existence until the conclusion of those cases. The cases were listed in a memorandum handed up by Percy Eyre, former of the Grand Jury, it was learned in special advice, received from San Francisco yesterday.

The three cases which were put on secret file, it is understood that the cases will under consideration are:

(1) The Chinatown case, involving liquor selling in Chinatown establishments and accusations linking members of the Chinatown police squad with knowledge of lawbreaking.

(2) The Giulia case, which has involved John DeMaria in Federal investigation regarding food supplies to rum-runners and in which the Giulia's crew is under arrest.

(3) A bank case, which has no relation to the liquor inquiry.

Liquor Craft Exposure
San Francisco has been shaken by astounding liquor graft and rum-running exposures, affecting many influential men, and is holding them. Most of the men are married and want to get back to their families, and I think are entitled to some action."

Krull's significant response was: "I can assure you there will be only one more hearing in this case—on next Friday. The government is conducting an investigation, which may result as much in favor of the defendants here as of the government itself. From the present standing of the case, the government may not be able to proceed further."

Green then consented to the postponement for a week.

Quadra's Chances Good
Assistant United States Attorney Grove Plink asked for a postponement of the case for a week. Green protested.

"Twice I have consented to postponements," he said. "Now it is up to the government to do something. It has seized this vessel and arrested its crew, and is holding them. Most of the men are married and want to get back to their families, and I think are entitled to some action."

Admiral Line Agent Leaves on Vacation

After a strenuous two months, in which the passenger accommodation of the Admiral line was tried to capacity, thus affecting the business of the local office, Mr. Leslie Peeling, assistant to Mr. W. N. Allen, the local representative, is taking a well-earned two weeks' holiday. Mr. K. B. Currie, of the Seattle office, has been assigned to his place during his absence. Mr. Currie is well known in Victoria, and this will give him an opportunity of not only looking up his friends, but also renewing many acquaintances. Mr. Allen has been assured that should Mr. Peeling shoot a five-legged deer while at Shawanigan Lake, he will be given the fifth leg. Friends assure Mr. Allen that he will taste no venison this season.

SAYS CAPTAIN FIRED TREBLA

Captain Berquist Faces Serious Allegations From Nine Insurance Companies Over Tug Trebla

FIRE VESSEL TO SECURE INSURANCE

Principal Charge Is That Trebla Was Burned Deliberately—Also Maintain the Value Misrepresented

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3.—Serious allegations are preferred by nine insurance companies in their defence to a $50,000 claim of Captain A. Berquist and the Smith, Dollar Timber Company for loss of the Trebla, steam tug and freighter, destroyed by fire on May 10 last in Sitash Bay, which is near Victoria.

The case came to trial in the Supreme Court today before Mr. Justice D. A. Macdonald.

The Smith, Dollar Company is a co-plaintiff for the reason that Captain Berquist holds in trust for it sixteen of the sixty-four shares in the Trebla.

The defendants allege that Captain Berquist misrepresented the value of the Trebla, that instead of the vessel being worth $100,000, its value was $25,000, and that he paid $10,000 for her.

Another principal defence is that Captain Berquist deliberately set the Trebla on fire with intent to defraud the defendants. This allegation is denied by the plaintiffs.

The insurance was issued after Captain Stanley Cullington, marine surveyor, reported that the Trebla was in a sound and seaworthy condition and valued the steamer at $100,000.

The Trebla was 130 feet in length and had a gross tonnage of 244 and a net tonnage of 204 tons.

SCUTTLED SHIP MAY BE FRONTIERMAN

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3.—That the steamer Giulia, scuttled under mysterious circumstances off the coast of California ten days ago, may have been the yacht Frontierman, which originally set out from London for Vancouver, is the unconfirmed report which has reached shipping circles here.

The Frontierman left England some eighteen months ago, manned by gentlemen adventurers who were to establish supply depots for the proposed Macmillan and Mallin round-the-world flight, but when the vessel reached Los Angeles funds had run low. She was libelled and sold by the sheriff.

Passenger Train Crashes Into Crowded Bus, and Victims Are Terribly Mangled in Virginia

NEWPORT NEWS, Nov. 2.—Eleven persons were killed and four others seriously injured this afternoon when a bus was struck by a Chesapeake and Ohio passenger train at Lee's crossing, near Hampton, Va.

The bus, which was crowded at the time of the accident, was demolished and the bodies of some of those killed were so badly mangled that identification was possible only by means of articles of jewelry and other bits of personal property.

The injured are now in the hospital. Several are not expected to live.

Repairs and betterments to the vessel costing approximately $125,000 recently were made at the Naval Station, Puget Sound, and she re-enters service in fine condition. While most of the trans-Pacific route, the liner's engines were given a complete overhauling. Improvements also were made about the ship, including new first class cabin rooms. The other four liners will be likewise equipped with the new beds, the installation costing the company $50,000 altogether.

The President Jackson will have about 300 passengers and full complement of machinery, flour, canned goods, automobiles and other freight.

EMPRESS LINER HAS ROUGH TRIP

Canadian Pacific Empress of Canada Averaged Only Ten Knots an Hour for Two Days of Voyage

UNUSUALLY STORMY WEATHER ON PACIFIC

Captain Evans, of Philoctetes, Also Tells of Tempestuous Voyage—Liner Brings Big Silk Cargo

THAT trans-Pacific travelers are experiencing very rough voyages due to the strong northwest storm in mid-Pacific and the fierce southeast gales that have been blowing along this Coast spasmodically, was substantiated on the arrival of the Blue Funnel liner Philoctetes from the Orient yesterday morning.

According to Captain Evan Jones, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada had a stormy passage out to the Orient. She only made an average of a little less than ten knots an hour for two days, according to the Captain of the Blue Funnel liner.

When it is considered that the Canada is the largest liner in the C.P.R. Pacific fleet, and on many occasions averages less than twenty knots an hour, some conception of the hurricane that she was battling against can be gained. It is without a doubt that some of her superstructure must have been damaged by the heavy seas that swept over her decks. Combers were flying mountains high, according to Captain Evans, whose ship also experienced a rough voyage.

The Philoctetes arrived here at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, one day late, due to a fierce storm outside. During the entire voyage the Philoctetes was struggling against strong head winds and heavy swell, which pounded her bulkheads with great force and on many occasions swept over the bridge in one great deluge. Walking along the upper decks was frequently dangerous, and the ship was battered down most of the journey.

Stowed away in her hold, Philoctetes had a silk cargo of over

WAS CAUGHT IN ICE OF KOTzebue Sound and Carried Westward—From Walk Ashore Across Ice

NOME, Alaska, Nov. 3.—By walking over the frozen waters of the Arctic Ocean, five members of the crew of the gasoline schooner NOME, of Nome, saved themselves from death after their vessel had been caught in the ice near Cape Enderberg, 150 miles over the Nome, according to word received here today. The silver Wave is a total loss, the crew said.

The vessel was caught in Kotzebue Sound, and was carried seventy miles westward. Its passengers and cargo were taken off. While Capt. Heinen, master and owner, and the engineer were ashore the schooner moved out to sea with its five remaining members of the crew on board. This was the fifth ship caught in the Arctic ice this year.

The latest vessel to come to Nome in several years was the Cordova, which arrived yesterday.

EXTENDS GYRO TO CALIFORNIA STATE

VICTORIA CLUB SPONSORS TWO NEW CLUBS IN SOUTH

Delegates Elmer Finland, Harold Buttrick and Harold McDonald Tell of Installations

The story of the installations of the Los Angeles and Long Beach Gyro Clubs, which took place on the evenings of Friday and Saturday, October 24 and 25 respectively, was related to members of the Victoria Gyro Club yesterday by President Elmer V. Finland, past president, and Director Harold L. Buttrick, and Gyro Harold McDonald, chairman of the club's affiliation committee, at the weekly luncheon gathering of the organization, which was held in the Hudson's Bay Company's private dining-room.

FEED YOUR CHILDREN UPON GHOST CEREALS

—If you will, but a farmer would laugh at you if you told him to feed them to his live stock, for he would know that live stock will soon die if fed upon them exclusively. Yet your children have not half the resistance of horses and cows. Then why feed them foods that will kill horses and cows?

Ghost cereals is the name science applies to certain unsaturated cereal foods whose chief claim for your attention is flavor and ease of serving. Now would you not rather buy real foods, especially for your children, than to buy these fancy packages which, without milk, are hardly foods at all? Certainly you would.

Well, Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal is precisely that. It is the darker, rougher parts of the grains that nourish and build sound and vital health. Roman Meal has the dark parts of three whole grains with bran, used in proportions to make a balanced human food. Beef contains 592 food units to the pound; Roman Meal contains over 1,600 food units to the pound. Prevents indigestion, positively relieves constipation. A truly wonderful food. You ought to try Roman Meal. At grocers. (Adv.)

installation was Mr. R. Rowe Holland, of Vancouver, international president of the Association of Gyro Clubs. Gyro Finland spoke of the fine calibre of men that are associated with the Gyro movement in California, and paid tribute to the splendid work of Mr. Robert S. S. Yates, formerly of Victoria, and an honorary member of the local Gyro organization, who was mainly responsible for the formation of Gyro Clubs in the South.

Praise for the wonderful hospitality extended to the Victoria members in California was extended to the members of the Los Angeles and Long Beach clubs by Mr. Buttrick, who told of the entertainment that had been provided for the visitors' pleasure. He mentioned a number of interesting incidents which occurred on the trip, and spoke of meeting a number of former Victorians, who expressed the wish that they were back again in Victoria.

Mr. Harold McDonald, who made the presentation of Gyro pins to the officers of the Los Angeles and Long Beach clubs at the respective installations, stated that the California club intended to carry on extension work in the Golden State, and that already the Long Beach club was lining up Gyro prospects in the cities of Pasadena, Santa Ana, San Bernardino and San Diego.

The speaker stated that building permits issued in Los Angeles for this year will total approximately $130,000,000, which is a greater record than was reached by any large city of the United States last year, with the exception of New York and Chicago, although 1923 was the greatest building year in the history of that nation. One of the principal structures which is now being built in Los Angeles is a mammoth convention hall, which will be known as the Olympic Auditorium, being named in honor of the Olympic games, which will be staged in Los Angeles in 1932. The building, which is being erected by private capital to meet a public need, will cost upwards of $350,000 and will possess a seating capacity of 12,000.

In spite of the cattle epidemic in the spring, and serious forest fires in the summer in California, it is estimated that by the end of the year, more motor tourists will have visited that state during 1924 than was the case during the previous year, Gyro McDonald asserted. He spoke of the presidential campaign in the United States, referring to the bitter fight being waged by the Republican and Progressive parties in an effort to win the state's electoral votes. Straw votes in California showed President Coolidge and Senator Robert M. La Follette running close, but the general opinion prevailed that the Republican nominee would succeed in carrying the state. The speaker touched on the spirit of optimism and boosting that Californians so ably displayed, and believed that if more of that same spirit were shown here, greater progress would be the result.

EX-CONVICT THRILLS SUNDAY CONGREGATION

Rev. Ralph Ballard Tells of Days as Fire Bug, White Slave and Doke Addict

Rev. Ralph Ballard, of New York, ex-convict, former fire bug and one-time white slave, told the story of his life—from the day he was wrapped up in a bit of newspaper and left upon the doorstep of St. Joseph's Home, Dundee, Scotland, to that when his eyes were opened by Providence, many years later, in the United States, to a thrilling audience at the Full Gospel Tabernacle, 1421½ Government Street, Sunday night.

In his degenerate days, he said, he had read the Bible several times, but only to be in a position to pull it to pieces. After he had used the Bible he would burn it. He would bribe the porter of a hotel to gather together all the Bibles in it, and he would burn them. He burned fifteen churches, in order that he might destroy the Bibles they contained. He had been convicted for several minor offences, but always was let out on bail; but when he burned the sixteenth church, he was caught and served time in Allentown penitentiary, Allentown, Pa. This only served to harden him and make him still disbelieve the existence of God. On his release he again resumed his work of burning Bibles, one day openly defying God by saying, if He existed, He could come down and interfere with his act. After going to bed a fine, healthy, robust man, he awoke the next morning helplessly paralyzed. He continued this way for five years, but at the end of that time, the very God he had spurned and disbelieved, in His love and mercy raised him up, and today he was telling his wonderful testimony throughout the country—a living witness of the redeeming grace of God.

FINDS DROWNING WAS OF ACCIDENTAL NATURE

Coroner's Jury Thinks Safety Devices Should Be Available for Men

The coroner's jury that investigated the circumstances connected with the death of Mr. George W. Smith last Friday night at the Victoria Machinery Depot reached the conclusion yesterday that he came to his death by accidental drowning. A rider to the verdict of the jury was to the effect that more safety devices should be provided at the place. The inquest was conducted before Dr. E. C. Hart.

The evidence of the witnesses that were called, who were those employed on the Princess Mary, which was undergoing repairs at the company's plant at the time, was that he had evidently slipped into the water, but there was no one who actually saw the accident. The unfortunate man went under the crane holding the vessel, and it was there that his body was found later.

When the splash was heard in the water at the time he went overboard immediate steps were taken to try to save him. A rope was thrown over the side, but this had not accomplished the object.

The night watchman got a boat out that was kept ready and in about fifteen minutes was on the spot. The man had been heard to cry out after he fell into the water, but disappeared under the crane. As far as could be ascertained the man was not a swimmer. After about half an hour's time the body was found. There was no lifebuoy kept on hand for the purpose of life saving.

The victim of the accident had been taken on to work on the Princess Mary. He had been employed several times before at the Depot. Mr. Alexis Martin appeared as the inquest for the Victoria Machinery Depot.

"ST. JOAN" READING PLEASES AUDIENCE

Dramatologue Proves Popular Reading Yesterday for George Bernard Shaw's Play

That the committee for the dramatologue was very happy in its choice of yesterday's presentation, George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan," was fully emphasized by the large number of people who attended the entertainment at the Empress Hotel. The play was shortened for the reading, and the epilogue and scene four were omitted.

The cast that read the parts gave the play with pleasing talent. Mrs. Guy Goddard, who took the part of Joan, the maid, was brilliant in her interpretation. Her enunciation and vocal modulations were artistic, and she infused into her reading the intense dramatic qualities so essential to the role, while the pathos and utter bewilderment of the maid in the court scene were splendidly portrayed. Others who took part were Mrs. Birnie, Capt. Thorpe-Dubie, H.N., Capt. J. A. P. Crompton, Major Bullock-Webster, Mr. A. D. Ford and Mr. Alex. McPhillips.

The introduction was charmingly read by Mrs. Birnie, who also announced the cast at the beginning of each scene, her introduction Mrs. Birnie said in part:

"We have done the very thing that Shaw most strongly resents. We have cut out parts of his play in order that it may be possible to read the remainder to you during the afternoon. In selecting the portions to be cut the only consideration has been, 'What might possibly be omitted without ruining the play from the listener's point of view?' We realize that you cannot trim a cut diamond without lowering the value. In the case of lesser playwrights than Shaw a blue pencil may often be slashed through their pages by a person of dramatic insight, but not so with G. B. Shaw. Every word has been weighed and placed for a purpose, though the purpose is often his own satisfaction rather than the satisfaction of the public."

"Joan of Arc, a village girl from the Vosges, was born about 1412. Shaw declares her to have been the first of the Protestant martyrs, and one of the earliest apostles of nationalism."

"He refuses to cut his play to meet the requirements of fashionable theatres, though he grants that the number of undramatic people who go to the theatre is prodigious, and that they prefer it shorter."

WANTS BELLA COOLA GIVEN CONNECTION

Mr. Michael Manson Believes New Tourist Route Can Be Created If New Road Is Built

In the development of the Province there is a demand for the connecting up of the interior of the central section of the Province with Bella Coola Valley into touch with the interior of the Province. With its history setting he felt that it would become a great tourist route. It would be a popular one and by connecting it up with the South mutual advantages would be derived.

Referring to the P.G.E., Mr. Manson said that the time had come when all should endeavor to do something sensible about this railway line. It had too long been made a political football. He felt that it could be made an asset to the Province.

4. Security: The bonds of this issue will be secured by a specific first mortgage on all the fixed assets of the Company, except the Yarmouth office building valued at not over $15,000, and are a floating charge on all the current assets.

The Trust Deed will provide that while any of the bonds of this issue are outstanding the Company shall not, through payment of dividends or other distributions to its stockholders or by purchase or redemption of any of its capital stock, voluntarily reduce its net current assets as therein defined below 90% of the amount of bonds of this issue then outstanding, or $750,000, whichever amount is greater.
